At Last! Garbo Talks!

Denies Marriage Plans

Stokowski's Friend She Admits, But They'll Not Wed

(Special to the Boston Evening American)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 22—Rumors of a near-future marriage of Greta Garbo and Leopold Stokowski, famed symphony leader, were declared "absurd" today by no less than Garbo herself in granting her first interview.

The screen star broke her silence exclusively for the Boston Evening American and other Hearst papers in a denial of the story that was plain and definite.

MAKES DENIAL

"Such rumors are absurd," the Swedish actress said. "I will not deny that Mr. Stokowski and I are good friends. But as for marriage to him—no, that is out of the question.

"I don't want to be ungracious, but I'm not going to answer any questions about my friendship with Mr. Cukor (George Cukor, the director) or any one else, either."

Miss Garbo was found at the gateway of the estate of George

Greta Garbo, the imperturbable, Sphinx-like "silent woman" of Hollywood, today broke her long standing and famous silence and avoidance of newspaper interviewers, when she opened her lips to deny for the Boston American recent rumors she might become the bride of Orchestra Leader Leopold Stokowski. The famed screen star, pictured above, called the reports absurd.

Wally a Hit With Hitler

Fuehrer Shows Great Cordiality on Visit

BERCHTESGADEN, Germany, Oct. 22 (AP)—Chancellor Hitler and the Duchess of Windsor apparently became fast friends today during the ducal couple's two-hour visit to Der Fuehrer's country home.

When the Windsors departed, Hitler held both the duchess' hands in his for a long time. Farewells were particularly cordial.

Hitler stood at attention on the threshold, with his arm extended until his distinguished guests' automobile disappeared from view in the direction of the station.

The Duke of Windsor and Hitler had a 20-minute talk before tea was served on the balcony. Afterward Der Fuehrer showed his guests around the garden.

Hull Demands World Peace

TORONTO, Canada, Oct. 22 (AP)—Cordell Hull, America's Secretary of State, summoned the "outraged conscience of mankind" today to set in motion forces designed to restore world peace.

In an address at Toronto University, Hull inveighed against "international lawlessness" generally but did not refer specifically to the conflicts in China and Spain to which his remarks obviously were intended to apply.

"There is a grim paradox," he asserted, "in the trends which

Hugh Johnson's Column In American Next Week

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—General Hugh S. Johnson, former NRA Administrator, will write a daily column on current events beginning next Monday for the Boston Evening American.

General Johnson will take no partisan stands, but will express his views as a citizen on current affairs affecting the country.

Because of his wide experience as a soldier, a lawyer, a manufacturer, a government official and a writer with a vivid style, as well as being a man of independence and courage, there will be special interest in what he has to say.

Gen. Johnson's daily column is expected to attract not only wide attention but to have considerable influence in helping New England citizens to clarify their opinions on current events.

General Johnson's writing has been conducted over a long period and on as many varied subjects as possibly any writer in the world. It was as an author of boys' books of fiction that he first established himself in this field when he was a young lieutenant in the Army just out of West Point.

He continued it with writings on military subjects and then, after the war, when he entered business as general counsel and chairman of the board of the Moline Plow Co., on business, economics and government for national magazines.

His daily column, his first essay in daily journalism, has from the start been an outstanding success in important newspapers the nation over. It is syndicated by United Feature Syndicate.

2 Workmen Lose Lives In Sewer

Trapped in a raging torrent of water that roared from a valve they opened in a sewer at Spruce and Second streets, Chelsea, two Metropolitan District Commission workmen were swept to their deaths today.

The victims were:

Walter Statz, 41, of Circuit street, Roxbury.

Arthur F. Peterson, 36, of Mt. Pleasant avenue, Roxbury.

A third workman, Michael Rossetti, 47, of Arcadia street, Roxbury, who nearly lost his life in an effort to save the trapped men, was hauled to safety by Michael Byrnes, foreman of the crew.

Rossetti was rushed to Chelsea Memorial Hospital suffering gas poisoning and water in his lungs.

The victims went into the sewer to repair a leaky main that had caused water to back up into the cellars of homes in the vicinity.

Peace at Home Vital to Business

WHY government?

Why industry?

Man was not made for industry, but industry for man.

The supreme objective of leaders in every field and phase of our national life must be the well-being of the people, embodying reasonable rewards for business enterprise, reasonable returns on saved and invested capital, reasonable rewards for workers.

Lately the nation has been going backwards rather than forwards. Employers in various directions have been reducing their working forces, profits have been suffering; investments have been shrivelling seriously in market value.

What has brought this about? What has prematurely arrested economic recovery? What has inflicted such suffering on frugal families who devoted their nesteggs to the upbuilding of enterprise and employment?

Many reasons are airily adduced for the recrudescence of panicky conditions in Wall Street and pessimism among employing classes.

But anyone intimately familiar with the state of mind among entrepreneurs and employers knows

Parolees Face Return to Jail

Paroled convicts were warned today by Chairman of the Board of Parole Ralph W. Robart that strict adherence to the parole rules will be demanded, or warrants will be issued revoking the parole.

In a letter to Governor Hurley, Chairman Robart pointed out that during the past six months 66 parolees have been returned to penal institutions for violations of parole regulations.

One of the strictest regulations of the Board of Parole is that the parolees must keep state officials informed as to their activities and whereabouts at all times, Robart said.

"The attendant evil of persons on parole wandering about the country without purpose of employment is apparent," Robart said. "They are potential breeders of crime. They must keep the parole agents informed at all times. The board will not countenance violations of this regulation."

Tobin Encouraged By Home Owners

Nichols Claims Record—Curley Hailed In Charlestown—Foley Lashes At Rivals

Hundreds of small home owners have pledged him their support in his battle for election as mayor, School Committeeman Maurice J. Tobin declared today at a meeting of supporters in his Oliver street campaign headquarters.

His plan to effect economy in the administration of the municipal government if elected has made a favorable impression upon small salaried taxpayers and they are particularly pleased with his suggestion that monthly payment of taxes be permitted by the municipal government for the convenience of those who must budget their incomes, he said.

CLAIMS RECORD

Former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols stated last night that no man who has ever held the office of mayor has ever equaled the record of his administration in the matter of building and resurfacing streets.

"During my four years as mayor," he said, "I built 173 new streets, reconstructed 116 others, and resurfaced 240 thoroughfares. And while I was doing this, I was also steadily reducing the tax rate."

Former Governor James M. Curley received a tremendous reception in Charlestown last night. Veteran Curley supporters of that district stated it was the most enthusiastic welcome they had ever experienced during a political campaign in that district.

Curley spoke in Roughan Hall after having been formally given the endorsement of members of a dozen clubs and fraternal groups of the section.

TELLS OF PLANS

He promised to do everything humanly possible for welfare recipients and W. P. A. workers in the coming four years, if elected, and announced plans for a drive to bring new industry to Boston with a view to providing further avenues of employment for jobless men and women of the city.

District Attorney William J. Foley last night charged that former Governor Curley, former Mayor Nichols, and School Committeeman Tobin are engaged jointly in a conspiracy to "impose upon the people of Boston four more years of Curleyism."

"The means employed to promote this conspiracy are that each conspirator will announce a different platform intended to attract and deceive a different group of voters," Foley said.

MAKES CHARGE

Foley charged that public statements of School Committeeman Tobin indicate that, if elected, he will delegate his powers as mayor to an assistant and will confine his personal activities to social matters.

He criticized Tobin for voting against open meetings of the school committee and charged that it was he who presented the motion to "freeze" the list of those awaiting permanent appointment as teachers. Tobin, he charged, asked former Governor Curley to appoint him as police commissioner of Boston.

"Mr. Tobin," he demanded, "rip off your mask of hypocrisy and tell the voters of Boston that you are surrounded by Curley men. Tell them of Arthur Reilly, whom Curley has always selected for his undercover work, Michael J. Ward, his former secretary, and John Hines, another former secretary."

Nichols, Foley said, when he tells of $28 tax rate during his term as mayor, fails to mention that this figure is $2.10 in excess of the rate in effect when he took office.

Curley, Nichols Lead in Day's Straw Vote

Ex-Governor Gets 4160 More Ballots; Gains Made by Others

By FRANK K. REILLY

Former Governor James M. Curley and former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols were leaders today in the daily tabulation of votes in the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser mayoralty straw ballot poll.

Curley received 4160 votes today bringing his total since the beginning of the poll to 29,345.

Nichols was credited with 911 votes today, making his total in the tabulation 7784.

Former Representative Alfred Santosuosso received 307 votes today, School Committeeman Tobin, 210; District Attorney William J. Foley, 191; Charles L. Manser, 142; Carleton L. Brett, 39; and Alonzo B. Cook, two.

Today's votes numbered 5962, bringing the total number of ballots cast since the beginning of the poll to 70,098.

Total vote for each candidate to date is:

James M. Curley	29,345
William J. Foley	17,415
Maurice J. Tobin	8,240
Malcolm E. Nichols	7,784
Alfred Santosuosso	4,679
Carleton L. Brett	784
Charles L. Manser	742
Alonzo B. Cook	101

Candidates Curley and Nichols received a substantial vote from nearly every section of the city. The bulk of the Santosuosso votes today came from East Boston and North End. Foley's votes came chiefly from South Boston and Dorchester.

The Tobin votes were largely from Roxbury and Brighton. Nearly all of the Manser ballots were forwarded from Back Bay, West Roxbury and Hyde Park.

All readers of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser are invited to participate in this mayoralty straw poll. Those who have not already mailed their ballots are urged to do so [illegible].

90 More Refute Signing Cook Nomination Papers

Alonzo B. Cook, mayoralty candidate and former state auditor, joined Charles L. Manser in facing expulsion from the ballot after 90 more persons today denied before the Ballot Law Commission in Faneuil Hall they had signed Cook's nomination papers, raising the total to 316.

The law requires 301 protested signatures to remove a candidate's name from the mayoralty fight.

At the same time District Attorney William J. Foley notified Police Superintendent Edward W. Fallon to pick up James Boyd of Pelham street, South End, for questioning in connection with his investigation into alleged fraudulent signatures on Cook's nomination papers.

The district attorney also declared he was seeking as a witness in connection with the Cook papers Miss Irma Adelaide Rich, a notary public, whose last address was Massachusetts avenue, Back Bay.

Already 315 persons testified this week before the Ballot Law Commission that they did not sign Manser's nomination mayoralty papers.

FAILS TO APPEAR

Manser was scheduled to appear before the commission at 11:30 a. m. and press for similar action against mayoralty candidates Malcolm E. Nichols and Maurice J. Tobin but failed to arrive.

After waiting for a half hour, the commission went into executive session and it was expected that Manser's complaint would be discussed.

Official finding on the Manser and Cook cases was expected late today or tomorrow morning.

Manser's request for a temporary order restraining the commission from ruling his name off the ballot was denied today by Judge Harold P. Williams of Superior Court. Counsel for Manser had filed a bill in equity earlier this week.

DRAWING TOMORROW

According to law, the ballots must go to the printers nine days before election date, November 2. Since the commission does not meet Sunday, tomorrow is the last day for hearing protests on signatures.

And tomorrow candidates must meet at City Hall and draw for their positions on the ballot at 11 a. m.

The charges against Manser and Cook were brought by Timothy W. Murphy, campaign manager for Nichols.

Manser, who has charged that the commission has denied him his constitutional rights, revealed that he has in his possession photostatic copies of Tobin nomination papers allegedly showing that one signature was that of a man who had died 21 days before the nomination papers were distributed.

The deceased is William J. [illegible], 61, of Hillside street, Roxbury, who died August 9, according to Manser.

It was revealed at the district attorney's office today that Inspector Martin J. Conboy visited a South End house last night to arrest the man named yesterday in a secret indictment in connection with the grand jury investigation into alleged fraudulent signatures on the nomination papers of Cook.

Rid Air of 'Gore,' Warns Payne

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (INS)—At odds with other members of the Federal Communications Commission who prevented him from attending proceedings respecting the barring of two lawyers from commission practice, Commissioner George H. Payne spoke his mind today on what he thought the commission ought to do.

He advocated a general overhauling of the procedure in granting licenses to broadcasting companies that would demand "cultural and educational standards" and rid the air of what he called "murder-and-gore programs for children."

Payne urged the commission keep a closer check on monopoly in the broadcasting field and that broadcasting companies be taxed on the basis of their operating power.

Asserting radio stations should be prevented from presenting children's programs of the character of some [illegible] now broadcast, Payne said:

"I have had many complaints condemning them. I had a man in here the other day who said, 'My child had a nightmare thinking he was being kidnaped and tortured after he had listened to one of those programs.'"

Payne said he knows a little boy who [illegible] his mother [illegible] on a "shoot-shoot" program.

2 Women 'Ghosts' In Votes Fraud

Control Seven Ballots by Being Listed In Three Separate Places Each

Two women "ghosts," with a potential voting strength of seven, were "smoked out" today as authorities pushed the police listing scandal inquiry into Ward 21 in the populous Allston-Brighton area.

Each of the feminine "spooks" was found "living" at three and more separate addresses, officials reported.

With this new development, a third woman became a central figure in the city-wide probe. Experts were comparing her penmanship with the "ghostwriting" of the two Ward 21 women.

Meanwhile, with one man already in custody and other arrests threatened, the drive to unseat the "master mind" of the city-wide conspiracy to pad the registration rolls moved swiftly towards a climax.

MURPHY ARRAIGNED

Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty confidently prophesied the entire conspiracy would be exposed.

The man arrested, James F. Murphy, 35, of Lawrence street, Charlestown, a telephone company inspector, was held in $100 bail for a hearing Tuesday when arraigned before Municipal Court Judge Joseph Riley.

He is accused of aiding and abetting John F. Daley to register illegally. Daley, say the police, is a name only.

OTHER ARRESTS COMING

As the police investigation spiralled rapidly across the city, it was learned:

That handwriting experts found a close resemblance between the penmanship of two other city employes and counterfeit signatures on the police listings.

That the arrest of five persons, two or three of them policemen, was imminent.

The sudden shift of the inquiry into Ward 21 marked the first time investigators have penetrated that section of the city.

The arena of a bitter state election fight last year, when Andrew J. Carlin prevailed over former Senator Michael J. Ward, the district is expected to yield an abundance of "ghostly" citizens.

THREE ADDRESSES EACH

The two multi-listed women were discovered at the opening of a preliminary survey of the district, one with her husband, is listed under three Commonwealth avenue addresses.

In each instance, the couple are listed under their own names.

The other woman and her husband were found in the listings as living at two Commonwealth avenue addresses and at two side street numbers.

Hundreds of signatures were being studied today by the experts, who include J. Osborn, of New York, star witness against Bruno Richard Hauptmann in the Lindbergh kidnap-murder; George Smith, Boston police department expert, and Miss Elizabeth McCarthy of the district attorney's office.

The arrest of Murphy was regarded as the first major development in the investigation in Charlestown, where the first flagrant violations were uncovered.

In the event of any person being found guilty, he will face a sentence of a year in the House of Correction or the Charles street jail.

121 IN DORCHESTER

At the same time, Commissioner Timilty's orders for a thorough investigation of all untouched phases of the city-wide probe were being carried out by 20 new policemen under the direction of Lieutenant Andrew Muldoon.

In Dorchester, investigations pushed with renewed vigor in the light of a constantly growing roster of "spooks."

In that section, Police Captain James T. Sheehan has personally accounted for 121 cases of fraudulent listings.

Spurred by the promise of a deputy superintendency as a reward for "breaking open" entire case, Captain Sheehan also reported that a "ghost" policeman had pulled the [illegible] of "spook" [illegible].

MOSCOW, Oct. 22 (AP)—Three officials from the Margelan region of Uzbekistan were sentenced to death today as alleged members of a nationalist band purportedly headed by Akmal Ikramoff, deposed member of the central executive committee. This band has been accused of plotting to overthrow the Soviet regime with the armed aid of foreign powers.

Widow of Slain Man Flays Rival

Says Miss Drennan's Story of Tragedy Not the Truth

(Editor's Note—In the following article Mrs. Myra Reeves, widow of Paul Reeves, defends his character and reveals the cause of her bitterness against Margaret Drennan, on trial for his murder.)

By MYRA REEVES
(As Told to Dorothy Kilgallen)

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 22 (INS)—As I wait for the jury to decide Margaret Drennan's fate, all I can think of is my husband and how much I loved him.

That's why I keep crying all the time. I can't help it. I loved my husband. He was a swell fellow. Every time Margaret Drennan said on the stand that he was like a beast and a maniac I could have screamed. I wanted to jump up and shake her and maybe shake the truth out of her.

He was kind and sweet. I lived with him for six years. I'd know his character, wouldn't I? We were so close—I was crazy about him and he was crazy about me and about the children.

"SHE EQUALLY TO BLAME"

I don't know how he could have got mixed up with Margaret Drennan. He wasn't a woman chaser. He loved his home and his family. But I do know that if there was anything between them, she was as much to blame as he was.

Why did she have to pick my husband? Aren't there plenty of single fellows? Did she have to break up my home and kill my husband and make my children orphans?

Ever since the night of September 7 I haven't done anything but cry. Yesterday someone asked me:

"Why don't you go home? Why do you stay here and torture yourself listening to this rotten testimony?"

I just said: "Have you ever been in love?"

When you've really loved a man you can't forget him in a day.

'DIDN'T TELL TRUTH'

I sat in this courtroom every day during the trial because I had to know the truth. I wanted to know what really happened between my husband and Margaret Drennan.

Well, I didn't find out. She didn't tell the truth on the stand and she knows it in her heart. She lied. That's why yesterday I lost my grip on myself and pleaded with her from the witness stand. I couldn't keep silent any longer and I begged her to tell the truth for the sake of my children.

What am I going to tell them when they grow up? What is she going to tell her child, I wonder?

No one can imagine what these days have been like for me. I haven't slept. I know I look terrible. I can't eat. I can't talk to people without crying.

I keep seeing my husband's face in front of me and I keep wanting to tell him:

"Paul, I love you. I believe in you. I don't believe the terrible things they say about you."

'SHOULD BE PUNISHED'

Then I look at that girl and see her alive and breathing and I think of him dead and I can't help being bitter toward her.

I won't say I hope she gets the chair. I'm not that vindictive. But I can't hope she'll go free. I think she ought to be punished some way for causing so much sorrow.

People ask me what my plans are and I can't answer. I must make something for my children. I don't care for myself. Paul is gone and he was all I wanted. I'll have to work to support my children. I spent most of Paul's insurance money on his funeral.

I feel numb now. I just want to sit and cry and think about the days when I was happy. Last night someone gave me a book of poetry and I read some of the poems—they were love poems—and afterwards I felt better. I remembered my love for Paul and his for me, and I know that what he had can never be destroyed. I like to think of one verse:

"Many waters cannot quench love, neither can floods drown it, for love is as strong as death."

A policeman's life is a happier one in Europe than in [illegible], according to Edward V. Hill, member of the [illegible] faculty and [illegible], who has recently returned after making a survey of European police departments.

Dr. Hill said police science is more advanced abroad than here, and the policeman is looked upon with the respect given a man of the professions and is not hailed a "cop" or "flatfoot."

The use of scientific aids are stressed more than they are in the United States, and the courts are very liberal concerning the introduction of evidence brought to light by science, he said.

Whitman Youth Injured in Crash

Walter Taylor, 22, of Temple place, Whitman, was found lying unconscious in his wrecked automobile on Main street, in Weymouth today, by a passing milkman, who called police.

Taylor was taken to Weymouth Hospital. It was found he had serious head injuries. His name was placed on the danger list. The car hit a tree and was demolished.

Soviet Blocking Of Spain Troop Move Feared

Gijon Fall Hastens Harmony Among Europe Powers

LONDON, Oct. 22 (AP)—The Spanish neutrality subcommittee, reassembling to enact plans for ridding warring Spain of foreign troops, was confronted today by the strong possibility that Soviet Russia would disagree and throw Europe into another diplomatic stalemate.

Despite this threat, the weary diplomats stationed in London as representatives of the principal European powers headed for the day's discussions in an atmosphere more optimistic than any since the Spanish war broke out 15 months ago.

Three factors presaged eventual harmony among the nine powers represented, with the possible exception of Russia:

1—British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's virtual assurance that Britain was determined not to go to war.

2—Chamberlain's statement that he had received assurances that Italy had no territorial designs on Spain, including the Balearic Islands in the western Mediterranean.

3—The fact that the Spanish insurgents—aided by Italian and German intervention—had captured Gijon, center of the Valencia republican government's last resistance in the Spanish northwest. The fall of Gijon will release thousands of insurgent troops for possibly a conclusive drive against the Valencia armies.

Some quarters felt that the Soviet Union might oppose granting of belligerent rights to the warring forces in Spain before all foreigners are withdrawn, a proposal which won Italy and Germany to support the plan.

The big Communist state is a staunch diplomatic ally of Valencia. Italy, with Germany's approval, had insisted formerly that belligerent rights be accorded to the insurgents before any withdrawals were made.

It was obvious that the London government, eagerly desirous of putting general European peace on a firm basis, was prepared to make all possible concessions to Italy.

Chinese Stage Fierce Battle Near Shanghai

Converge on Japanese Troops at Tazang By 5 Routes

SHANGHAI, Oct. 22 (AP)—Determined to save Tazang at all costs and to prevent their Chapei supply lines being cut, the Chinese tonight threw heavy reinforcements into that sector where the longest and fiercest single battle of the Shanghai war was in progress.

Chapei is the native quarter of North Shanghai, bordering on the International Settlement. Five miles out along the battle line extending northwest is Tazang.

The Chinese troops, pushing into the combat zone from five different routes, converged on Japanese troop bases along Wentsaopang creek, near Tazang.

CLOSE QUARTER FIGHTING

A Chinese spokesman reported the recapture of five villages near Japanese positions, including a place called the "Temple of the Big Black Prince," which was used as a Japanese supply base.

Furious close-quarter fighting occurred there, with the Chinese using bayonets, big swords and rifles.

A Chinese spokesman asserted that Chinese troops recaptured [illegible], an important point on the road to Kiating, where the Japanese, after destroying every building, retired nearly a mile.

WARSHIPS GIVE AID

Shells from Chinese batteries in Pootung, across the Whangpoo river from Shanghai, fell in the Japanese-occupied Hongkew section of the International Settlement. Two of the projectiles struck a British-owned, unoccupied [illegible] building.

Artillery and trench mortars boomed incessantly. Japanese warships in the Whangpoo joined in the barrages laid down by Japanese field pieces. Repeated Chinese air raids kept Japanese anti-aircraft guns in constant action.

10 Solons Demand U. S. Ban on War

Senators and representatives, meeting in Washington, replying to a single question or set of questions, may give an answer that is the result of conferring among themselves. The answer may be dictated by party lines.

Senators and representatives, replying to a single question or set of questions from their home cities in different states, represent, to a far greater degree, the feeling in their home districts at the time of the answer.

Ten, including a senator and nine representatives, answered the Boston Evening American's seven-question poll on what stand the United States should take on participation in the nine-power treaty parley and other foreign entanglements. With almost complete unanimity they demand:

No foreign entanglements—the policy of George Washington.

Adequate national preparedness—"Speak softly and carry a big stick"—the policy of Theodore Roosevelt.

"KEEP OUT," MOORE EDICT

Senator A. Harry Moore, of New Jersey, gave as complete an answer in fewer words, as any senator or representative who has replied to the poll question. He wired:

"Keep out of it today—in every way. Keep out of it tomorrow—in every way. Keep out of it for all time—in every way."

Sweeping across the country with congressmen, regardless of party, in summaries of their views, these replies have been received:

Martin F. Smith, Democrat, of Washington:

"Keep out of even treaty conferences if they must lead to war. Keep out of Spain. If there must be a declaration of war, let it require a referendum by the people."

B. J. Gehrmann, Progressive, of Wisconsin:

"Keep out of all participation in foreign quarrels. Except for the World War we have stayed out. That lesson proves we should stay out. In any war except invasion, let there be a referendum. Be strong for defense, but keep out of even a suggestion leading to war."

BANS NEW POLICIES

Francis H. Case, Republican, South Dakota:

"I have urged, in Congress, that President be forbidden to send more than 25,000 men more than 500 miles from our shores without a referendum by the people. That should hold for all diplomats to foreign conference tables as well. Keep out of foreign wars and build defense to a point where foreign powers will not bring war to us."

Joe L. Smith, Democrat, of West Virginia:

"No new policies. No participation in nine power treaty conferences. No resort to force in repressing war. No advance from foreign powers in naming an aggressor. No move in repression of wars abroad. No taking sides in Spain. No participation in foreign wars without referendum of the people. To any suggestion to abandon our historic policy of isolation in foreign affairs, no, no, no."

John L. McClellan, Democrat, Arkansas:

"Keep out of it. Be prepared to keep foreign nations and their troubles out of the United States. Unless attacked, let foreign war participation require a referendum vote."

FISH OUTSPOKEN

Hamilton Fish, Republican, New York:

"Keep out of any foreign league. Take no part in policing China. Pledge no force in repressing warlike nations. Join no foreign power in naming an aggressor nation. Keep out of talk of repression, fight only when attacked—but be prepared to fight successfully then.

"I propose to offer resolution at next Congress barring President from sending marines and soldiers to foreign countries without consent of Congress; to prohibit sale and shipment of arms, in war or peace."

Thomas O'Malley, Democrat, Wisconsin:

"Keep out of League of Nations, World Court, Nine-Power treaty or any other foreign situation dealing with war. Mouldering bones of thousands of fine American boys in European cemeteries testify to the idiocy of any policy that we are divinely ordained to enforce peace on nations that want war.

"Build America to vast strength for defense, but be sure that American fathers and mothers will not stand from any leader or party another betrayal of the lives of their sons into the bloody schemes of European powers and international bankers. The lesson of 1917 has not been forgotten."

URGES STRONG DEFENSE

Matthew J. Merritt, Democrat, New York:

"A strong defense, a defense capable of withstanding any foreign power or powers, is America's best assurance of peace. We have won all past wars, but never a diplomatic conference with foreign powers. Meet an offensive war against us, if it comes, but keep out of the tangled diplomatic conferences that might put us into any offensive wars against others."

Lewis M. Long, Republican, Illinois:

"Why quibble—we mix into conference, and start along paths leading no one knows where, or we keep entirely free and maintain our traditional attitude of peace."

Answers and [illegible] of more congressmen will be printed tomorrow.

SHOULD U. S. CHANGE ITS FOREIGN POLICY?

The nation is aroused by talk of war. The biggest question in the nation is how to keep the United States at peace. Seeking the answer, the Boston American polled Congress, asking their replies to the following seven questions:

1—Do you think United States should abide by its historical policy and keep free from Leagues of Foreign Nations or do you think new conditions make new policies necessary?

2—Do you think United States should act with nine power treaty parley and take sides in present foreign conflicts?

3—Do you think United States should act with leagues or combinations of foreign nations and resort to force or to hostile acts to repress war?

4—If the United States is to participate in foreign wars as they arise, should the United States by itself determine which nation is the aggressor or the guilty party, or should it be guided by a majority vote of a league or parley of foreign nations?

5—Do you think the United States can best show its aversion to war by trying to repress warring nations or by keeping entirely free from war itself and from the wars of others?

6—If the United States is to participate in foreign wars, which side should we take in the Spanish conflict—the Fascist or the Communist side?

7—If the United States is a democracy in which the will of the people rules, do you or do you not think that the very vital question of participating in any foreign war could best be decided by a referendum vote of the people?

The questions were wired with instructions to the telegraph companies to forward if the Senator or Congressman is within the territorial boundaries of the United States.

Franco's Forces Sweep North As Reds Quit

Win Releases Huge Forces for Great Madrid Drive

WITH INSURGENTS IN NORTHERN SPAIN, Oct. 22 (AP)—The last vestige of government control in northwest Spain vanished today as Generalissimo Francisco Franco's victorious armies swept Asturias (Oviedo province) from end to end.

Even more complete than the collapse of the defenses of Santander August 25 was the crumbling of the morale of the savage, dynamite-hurling miners who formed the government's army in Asturias.

Where two days ago they had their backs to the wall and were retreating slowly, burning and blowing up villages behind them, today they were dragging cannon, machine guns and rifles into the insurgent lines.

The Asturian [illegible] started when the Government leaders tumbled over themselves to board ships in the Gijon harbor and escape to France.

Immediately Insurgent sympathizers in Gijon took over the city, commandeered the radio station, and called all Insurgent stations and army headquarters, shouting in effect:

"Come and get it. It's yours."

[illegible] The Fourth Brigade of Navarrese troops marched into the seaport in the afternoon.

As radios blared the news, the [illegible] remnants of the Government garrisons [illegible] of Gijon, marched battalion after battalion into Insurgent lines to surrender.

Nye Warns 'U. S. Holds War Bag'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 22 (INS)—European nations are preparing to leave America "holding the bag" at the Nine-Power conference next month, Senator Gerald P. Nye (R.), North Dakota, maintained today.

"In the conference in Brussels next month," Senator Nye told the Indiana State Teachers' Association, "Uncle Sam will get plenty of agreement from other nations that quarantines should be established. But when it comes to a showdown, the other nations will tell the United States that they are 'in a peculiar condition' and that America will have to 'go it alone.'"

Asserting America's [illegible] situation today is virtually identical with that which led the nation into the World War, Senator Nye assailed President Roosevelt's failure to invoke the neutrality law in the [illegible].

Makers of munitions and war supplies plan to involve the United States in the Sino-Japanese conflict, the senator charged. If America becomes involved in war with Japan, those who rally to the colors would be mowed down by their own implements of war, Nye asserted.

Peace at Home Vital to Business

that they, warrantedly or unwarrantedly, attribute their cautious, hugging-the-shore attitude to apprehension over what may develop at Washington.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT declared the other day:

"America hates war. America hopes for peace. Therefore, America actively engages in the search for peace."

The one thing, the only thing needful for abolishing retrenchment and retrogression in this country is the abandoning of anti-business activities by Washington, accompanied by constructive reciprocity on the part of industry.

Why not engage in the search for peace right here in the United States?

Peace at home is even more vital to the good of America and Americans than peace abroad.

Unfortunately, President Roosevelt has not indicated any intention of ceasing to enact legislation disturbing to industry, investment, employment. He has summoned Congress to meet next month in special session largely for the purpose of writing on the statute books laws unpalatable to those shouldering the responsibility of filling pay envelopes.

If ever the nation needed a "breathing spell," a truce, between those administrating the affairs of government and those administrating the business affairs of the country, it is NOW.

SOMETHING very significant happened this week in Wall Street. When securities were plunging headlong towards panic prices, concerted efforts appeared to stem the debacle. Within an hour or two such support was forthcoming that the violent downswing was checked and calm was substituted for calamitous happenings.

THIS DEMONSTRATION SHOULD BE ACCEPTED AS CONVINCING TESTIMONY THAT MOST RESPONSIBLE MEN OF FINANCIAL AND BUSINESS AFFAIRS ARE NOT, AS SOMETIMES CHARGED, EAGER TO "PUT ROOSEVELT IN A HOLE," BUT THAT THEY GRASP THE VITAL NECESSITY FOR EXERTING THEMSELVES TO AVERT ANOTHER FINANCIAL AND ECONOMIC HOLOCAUST.

Will Franklin D. Roosevelt reciprocate by exerting himself to bring about "peace," peace between the government and those upon whom the government depends and must depend for the wherewithal to meet its colossal expenditures?

There is absolutely no occasion whatsoever for America plunging into another spasm of depression, disaster, unemployment. The collapse which came in 1929 was inevitable, inescapable.

Another similar collapse now would be criminal. There is no over-expansion of credit, no fantastically excessive rates for money, no unconscionable speculation, no excess of production, no ridiculous quotations for securities.

Rather, America possesses almost every ingredient entering into the making of sound prosperity.

All that is necessary to allay hysteria and to send the nation forward and upwards is the establishment of "peace."

The olive branch has been held out by industry, by business. WILL President Roosevelt respond?

Roosevelt Regime 'Worst In History,' Says Bridges

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. and Senator H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire joined today in denouncing the present administration in Washington as one of the worst in the nation's history.

They spoke at a luncheon sponsored by the finance committee of the State Republican party. It was attended by 1000 members of the party in the rooms of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Senator Lodge charged that the present high cost of living in this country is due entirely to the tactics of the Democratic party's government in Washington.

"Unemployment relief doesn't get down to the poor people who really need it," he said. "Social security taxes, taken out of the working man's salary, are too high, compared to what is paid back out of them.

CRUSHING INDUSTRY

"Taxes on property and business are so high that it is impossible for industry to redeem itself. The G. O. P. has had its faults, but its record has been intelligent and patriotic. The only way America can redeem itself is through the instrumentality of the Republican party.

"There are 17,000,000 of us!"

Senator Bridges' attack was longer, more bitter than Senator Lodge's.

"This government is the greatest spending machine in history," he charged. "The trouble has been that the Republicans have been following a negative policy. Roosevelt, for example, demanded a neutrality program at the last session of Congress. He got one.

SOUND FOREIGN POLICY

"He got one that automatically allies this country with the stronger, the aggressor nation. We can sell only to the country that can pay us, that can come to our shores for the material it wants to buy. So we must help Italy against Ethiopia, Japan against China.

"That program has never been used because Roosevelt has been afraid to. It is unworkable. We need a sound foreign policy, and we are not going to get it this way or by turning interest to it to cover up affairs like the Hugo Black matter.

"For the first time in 4 years we will have an unfavorable trade balance. I am against reciprocity. Tariff in the past has been a political football, but we will get nowhere this way.

"We should make it illegal to admit entry to commodities produced in the United States under the average American cost.

WORST ELEMENTS

"The climax of the court issue was appointing Black as justice. Roosevelt did that solely to get revenge against the enemies who fought his court measure earlier. Roosevelt and Black represent the worst elements of government.

"They are not liberals."

They and subsequent speakers held out hope for the future of the Republican party by offering "a sane and progressive" policy to America.

J. Wells Farley, who presided at the meeting, admitted that the party leaders had "been tried and found wanting."

Prominent men and women at the luncheon included Senator Samuel P. Wragg, Representative Christian Herter, Congressmen Robert Luce, Richard B. Wigglesworth, Edith Nourse Rogers, Charles L. Gifford and Katherine Parker, Chairman Sinclair Weeks, State Treasurer William E. Hurley, Speaker of the House Horace P. Cahill, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic W. Cook, George Tarbell, Walter Channing, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Lovett, Ripley L. Dana, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hoar, Mrs. Addison E. Green, Peter Holmes, Raymond Cox, Arthur Perry and Frank G. Allen.

Jim Roosevelt's Job Seen First In Shakeup

Will Be 'Clearing House' for Deal Agencies

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—James Roosevelt's designation as a coordinator for independent federal agencies was viewed by some observers today as a preliminary step in the President's suggested government reorganization program.

The Chief Executive asked Congress, among other proposed revisions, to increase his White House staff to six administrative assistants and contact men. The House voted its approval last summer, and the Senate probably will consider the recommendations at the special session.

James Roosevelt, one of three White House secretaries, emphasized that it was purely the executive work of all the boards, commissions and bureaus involved that his father wished coordinated.

The son, whose long legs stretch beneath a desk in a room across the White House lobby from his father's office, referred to himself as a "clearing house." He emphasized the program was voluntary and said its purpose was greater efficiency.

"The President thought it was a good idea," young Roosevelt said, "to set up some kind of a system whereby the agency heads would have access once a week to some one in the White House to tell what they had on their minds.

The other purpose of his new job, he said, will be to compose differences between various agencies and give pertinent information to each on what the others are doing.

At 29—he will be 30 in about two months—James has put in five years as an insurance company executive and several months as head of a yeast corporation. He officially became a White House secretary last July 1.

Moral: Be on Time

LAMAR, Mo., Oct. 22 (AP)—Judge Thomas W. Martin told the jury to be on hand at 1:15 p.m. Juror Fred Fowler showed up at 1:18. Judge Martin fined him $3, a dollar for each minute he was late.

Owes Life To 'Miracle'

PETER SMITH

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Smiling, happy, freckled Peter Smith, 16, of the Bronx, is living evidence of "a miracle." When Peter was an hour old, through a hospital mistake he was inflicted with blindness, bronchial pneumonia and third degree burns.

His case was so hopeless the attending doctor didn't even bother with him. But within 72 hours the babe was well and unscarred. Credit for this apparent miracle is given to a relic of Mother Cabrini which had been pinned by a nurse on the apparently doomed infant. Peter is now studying for the priesthood.

The "miracle" will be reviewed by Roman Catholic authorities considering the qualifications of Mother Cabrini.

Boy, 8, Missing

Boston police were asked today to find James Byrne, 8, of Moultrie street, Roxbury, reported missing since 6 p.m. last night by his guardian, Miss Mary A. Kelly.

President Plans No Increase in U.S. Relief

Roosevelt Expresses Confidence Budget Will Be Balanced

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (INS)—President Roosevelt intends to stay within the $1,500,000,000 appropriated for federal relief during the current fiscal year, he declared today.

No deficiency relief appropriation will be asked of Congress for 1937-38, he said.

Mr. Roosevelt expressed continued confidence at his press conference today that the 1938-39 budget could be balanced, despite discouraging revised estimates for the current year.

STUDY TAX PROBLEM

A reporter suggested he might be getting reports from various departmental heads which could be incorporated into a business outlook statement. Mr. Roosevelt replied he did not have that in mind and felt that publication of the regular departmental reports was sufficient to inform the country.

The entire tax situation is now under study by the Treasury Department, the President said, and it is hoped that Treasury experts will be able to go before congressional committees during the November special session with reports.

No action on tax revision is contemplated, however, until the regular January session.

CALLS CONFERENCE

The President parried questions about modification of the undistributed profits tax and the capital gains tax, saying the Treasury was studying that problem along with others. A final decision on a new tax setup has not yet been made, he indicated.

Before leaving Washington tomorrow afternoon for a two weeks' stay at Hyde Park, Mr. Roosevelt said he planned to confer with Budget Director Bell, Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, and Secretary of Labor Perkins about the recommendations he will make to the special session on crop control and hour-wage legislation.

Two in Boston Draw Sweep Favorites

Dorchester Baby, East Boston Man May Win $150,000

astounding luck reached his modest three-room apartment. He had but 15 cents in his pocket.

His wife, Josephine, heard it, as did the children.

Almost overcome, she said tearfully that she and her husband would put the money in the bank, pay back bills and see that the children are educated.

They are Peter, 14; Maria, 12, who immediately asked for a big lollypop; Alberta, 9, and Michaelona, 7. An immediate search was begun for Chanfroccos.

The Chanfroccos learned of the results a short time after the first flash in the Boston area came to Mrs. Dorothy Gudbrannsen of Magnolia street, Dorchester.

Mother of four children, she held a ticket on the starting horse, Miss Windsor.

She was also the first person in Boston notified that the wheel had turned her way, giving her a chance to win $150,000.

BABY GETS CREDIT

Her husband, [illegible], is an engineer in the Hotel Bellevue, she told a Boston Evening American reporter who notified her of her good luck.

When their first child, Dorothy, 7, was born, she bought her first sweepstakes ticket, she said.

This lucky [illegible] is listed in the name of her four-months-old son, Robert. Her other two children are Donald, 6, and Lois, 3.

To the sister, little Robert, goes the credit, she declared, crying joyfully.

"The baby brought us luck. We never won anything on the sweeps before. And we bought a ticket from a neighbor this time just because she wanted to get rid of a book."

Sharing in the [illegible] winnings is the paternal grandfather, Peter C., a part holder of the ticket.

"CAN'T BELIEVE IT"

When James F. Splaine, of 248 Summer street, Somerville, heard the news that his ticket was on one of the five favorites, Solar Bear, he exclaimed excitedly:

"What? You're fooling me!"

Then he calmed down and said only half convinced:

"I can't believe it!"

The American reporter popped the usual question at this point. What was Mr. Splaine going to do with the money?

And Splaine replied:

"Well, the first thing I'll do is buy you a gift for telling me the good news!"

Finally he said that he wasn't quite sure that what he would do, but that he and Mrs. Splaine would probably go to Europe and visit the birthplaces of their parents.

There are four little Splaines to share in the sudden wealth. They are Margaret, 20, who works; Betty, 17, and Mary, 15, high school students, and John, 8, in grammar school.

All morning the Splaines talked on, between laughter and tears.

And in Boston, among the early winners, there was found a touch of sadness, a note of pathos that mingled in a single bittersweet picture.

It came when Mrs. Dalton V. [illegible] of West Cedar street, Beacon Hill, who played the long chance with the name of "Chummy," found [illegible].

"Chummy" was the name of her pet dog.

It died recently.

Among the many who "hit" [illegible].

R. I. WINNER'S HUNCH

At Providence, a [illegible] Albert T. Clemente, [illegible] to put the first "sweeps" ticket he ever bought in a safety deposit vault.

His hunch came true when he drew a starter, Idaho. Clemente, [illegible] said he and his wife, Elsie, a language instructor at Central High School, would go to Ireland to cheer if Idaho leads the park home.

If they do win, they will take advantage of the expedition journey to obtain a tour of the Continent.

[illegible] horses had been drawn. There were [illegible] more to come with [illegible] to be drawn later, which approximately $4,750,000 makes up the prize fund.

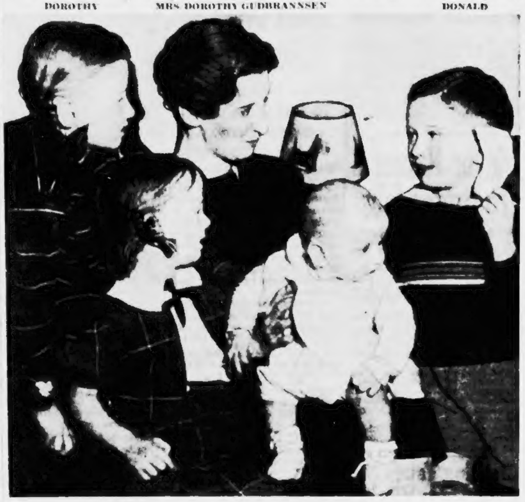
This second sum has been divided into 15 units of about $317,000 each.

In addition to the big money winners, there will be 100 consolation prizes in each unit. Each consolation prize will be $500.

The cash left after the prize money is expended has been divided into 20 residual prizes to be won outright regardless of the outcome. They total $41,[illegible] each.

Awarding of consolation and residual prizes will be held tomorrow.

Their Hopes Ride With Miss Windsor



It is now up to "Miss Windsor," one of the best horses in the Cesarewitch race at Newmarket, England, to bring riches to the Gudbrannsen family at 18 Magnolia square, Dorchester. On a ticket made out in name of Robert, four months old, "Miss Windsor" was drawn today. The race is on Wednesday. Left to right are Dorothy, 7; Lois, 3; Robert, four months; Donald, 6, and Mrs. Dorothy Gudbrannsen.

James F. Splaine, who operates a variety store in Somerville, holds a ticket on Solar Bear in the Irish Sweepstake drawings. The ticket was made out "All The Family." Splaine was photographed in his store today just after he was told of his good fortune.

One Garr Freed, Other on Trial

SHELBYVILLE, Ky., Oct. 22 (AP).—The murder charge against Jack Garr was dismissed today, but the fate of his brother Roy, who admitted shooting Brigadier-General Henry H. Denhardt, was left to the jury.

Circuit Judge Marshall sustained a defense motion to free Jack, youngest of the three brothers charged with shooting the World War veteran who was accused of slaying their sister.

Judge Marshall instructed the jury to find Roy guilty of either first degree murder or voluntary manslaughter, or to acquit him.

Dr. E. S. Garr, the third brother, was not called to trial at this time. His counsel reported he was in a sanitarium.

The defense today offered testimony to show Roy Garr was emotionally insane when he shot Denhardt.

M'Intyre Funeral Rites Monday

The funeral of Mark McIntyre, father of Mark McIntyre of the Daily Record staff and Thomas McIntyre of the Detroit Daily News, who died early yesterday, will be held Monday morning in St. Mary's of the Assumption Church, Brookline. Burial will be in St. Joseph's Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Mr. McIntyre, who was 67, died in his home, 5 Franklin court, Brookline, after a long illness. He was a former employe of the town of Brookline and was active in building trades union circles.

Boys, 4, Admit Beating Infant

Police charged today that two four-year-old boys had administered a mysterious beating to seven-months-old Richard LeCain last night as he lay in his carriage outside his home in Chestnut street, Lynn.

Mrs. Arthur LeCain reported to police early today that her infant son had been beaten on the head and body.

The four-year-old boys admitted, police said, that they clubbed the child with its nursing bottle and then ran away.

Patrolman Shoots At Fleeing Pair

Believed to have been fleeing the scene of an attempted payroll robbery in Bridgeport, Conn., two youths narrowly escaped capture in Brookline today when a policeman found them trying to change the license plates on a stolen car.

Patrolman Edward Markarevitch, who came upon the pair on Oakland road, Brookline, fired shots in the air when the youths failed to heed his order to halt. They made good their escape.

Hull Makes Plea For World Peace

"International Lawlessness" Scored In Toronto Speech

are so clearly discerning today. As civilization moves to higher and higher levels, as the march of progress opens wider and wider horizons of material and cultural advancement, war becomes more relentlessly cruel, more thorough and effective in its unrestraining savagery.

SEES SEEDS OF HOPE

"Yet in this very paradox, in this soul-shattering conflict, there are seeds of hope. No more than than a community or nation, can the world of today base its existence in part on order and in part on chaos, in part on law and in part on lawlessness.

"And, just as, sooner or later, the outraged conscience of a community or nation sets into motion forces which re-establish order under law, so I firmly believe the outraged conscience of mankind will set in motion forces which will create, in the sphere of international relations, unshakable order based on law."

Hull pointed an admonitory finger at aggressor nations.

"Modern civilization has survived and has gone ever forward because the violators of order, the breakers of the peace, have always been the exception rather than the rule," he declared.

TELLS U. S. AIM

"Whatever tragedies they have caused during their brief appearances on the stage of history, in the end they have always bowed to the will of that overwhelming majority of mankind which desires a continuing, rather than an inglorious decline, of man's civilized existence."

Receiving from the university the honorary degree of doctor of laws the American official spoke significantly of the peace aims which he said the United States and the British Empire share in common.

"There is a special appropriateness in my saying all this on the soil of a great member of the British commonwealth of nations," he said.

"My country and the countries which compose your mighty union are among the protagonists of the idea that peace rather than war is the normal state of human relations within and among nations."

Hull reiterated previous pleas for complete and general respect for international agreements as an indispensable condition to achievement of international order.

WARNS NATIONS

"There must be a firmly established sense of mutual respect and consideration of nations for nation. The very essence of an international agreement is destroyed if any one party to it arrogates to itself a position of superiority with regard to the other parties, or the right, solely by its own decision, to denounce it or to alter the application of its terms.

"There must be a firm belief in the inviolability of the pledged word . . . There must be a willingness to adjust differences by peaceful means—without the expectation of victory or the infliction of humiliation."

Hull warned that no nation can escape the repercussions of a major armed conflict anywhere in the modern world.

"However far they may be removed from the seat of actual fighting, all nations feel their moral weakened by the horror of war and their well-bing impaired by the processes of disruption and ruin which spread in ever-widening circles from the territories being laid waste by war. Once the engines of war are brought into action in any portion of the earth, there is no security, no confidence, no buoyancy or energy of spirit anywhere."

O'Hara to Lash Quinn in Radio Talk Tuesday

'Gansett Racing 'Czar' Promises to Use Harvard Accent

By JAMES J. DELANEY
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 22.—Walter E. O'Hara, racing king without a throne, today declared a radio war on Governor Robert E. Quinn of Rhode Island, to start next Tuesday night "with my best Harvard accent."

O'Hara breezed into the lobby of the Biltmore Hotel for a conference with his "brain trust" in his suite.

Wreathed in smiles, he shouted "cheerio" and "heigho" and "hi there" to all his henchmen.

To newsmen who asked him "what's doing?" he said:

"Big things on the air, boys. Better stick around."

After the pow-wow, as he was leaving the hotel, he was again asked "what's doing?"

"Nothing doing her," he answered. "I am going out to the track."

Q—What's doing at the track?

A—I have to get in condition.

Q—Condition—for what? A—I'm going to "break my maiden." (Which is a race term that signifies to horsemen that a horse has won its first race.)

Q—What first race have you won? A—I'm going to break two precedents. First I'm going to break out into oratory. Second, I'm going to break out on the "radio." I'm going to start my answers to Quinn over Station WEAN on Tuesday night. I never made a public address before. I never spoke over the radio before, but I'll kind of guarantee it now. I'm going to turn on my best Harvard accent.

Frankfeld Refuses To Produce Red Roster

Philip Frankfeld, state secretary of the Communist Party, today refused to give the legislative commission investigating subversive activities a list of the members of his party in Massachusetts.

Recalled under summons to the State House hearing, Frankfeld told the commission in the midst of several verbal clashes:

"I have taken the list out of the state myself prior to the issuance of the summons by the commission, in order to save members of my party from being persecuted."

LIKE "WITCH HUNT"

Pressed by Senator Sybil H. Holmes of Brookline, chairman, whether he meant that the commission was "conducting a persecution," Frankfeld replied:

"Surely, madam, the investigation has taken on the character of a witch hunt."

After Senator Holmes found that of the documents submitted by Frankfeld some were still missing, she asked an explanation.

When Frankfeld began a lengthy discussion, she cut him short. Frankfeld and Attorney Thomas D. Shea, counsel for the party, vigorously protested, demanding their rights.

"We will no further tolerate dilatory methods," Senator Holmes replied curtly.

REFUSES TO ANSWER

But Attorney Shea declared Frankfeld would answer no more questions until given the opportunity of making an explanation.

And as Senator Holmes began a series of questions, Frankfeld remained standing and refused to answer.

"The witness' silence will be taken as a refusal to answer questions," the chairman remarked.

James P. Rose, a member of the commission and former state commander of the American Legion, asked Frankfeld if he took the membership list out of the state to keep it from the hands of the commission.

MAY SEEK COURT ORDER

"The action speaks for itself," he replied.

Frankfeld, in answer to a question by Representative Anthony Julian of Watertown, said he could get the list any time he wished.

The commission indicated that it may seek a court order which, if granted, would demand Frankfeld to produce the records or be adjudged in contempt of court for failure to bring them to the commission.

Mayor Names 3 To Better Jobs

Mayor Mansfield today appointed three members of his office staff to higher paid posts in the city's service.

William J. Healey of Dorchester, $2600-a-year stenographer, was named assistant secretary in the assessors' department at an annual stipend of $3000.

John J. Foley, Jr., of South Boston, also a stenographer, was appointed assistant secretary in the cemetery division of the park department. His pay was raised from $2600 to $2700.

The third appointee was Martin J. Conroy, of the West End, a messenger, who becomes an investigator in the institutions department. Now paid 2000, his new salary is $2100.

The appointments have the approval of civil service authorities and are effective at once.

Clothing Taken Up For China Victims

Clothing for Chinese war refugees today was being left at 700 Chinese laundries and police and fire stations in Boston.

This was in response to an appeal by President Karl T. Compton of M. I. T., chairman of the N. E. committee for relief in China. The clothing was transferred to a packing station at Boston Y. M. C. A. by Chinese students at Technology.

Kidnap Attempt Spurs Drive on Crime in R. I.

Quinn Orders Police To Rid State of All Lawless Elements

By JAMES J. DELANEY
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 22—Spurred by demands of an aroused citizenry, Governor Robert E. Quinn today ordered an unending campaign against every known or suspected criminal as the aftermath of yesterday's bold move to kidnap John Cappelli, 18 months-old son of Secretary of State Louis W. Cappelli.

In issuing the order to state and local police, the governor branded the kidnap attempt as "Another illustration of the assault on law and order in Rhode Island," an opinion which was echoed by clergymen, business and civic leaders in all parts of the state.

"I have ordered every underworld character driven from the state," the governor stated.

"I am not asking for a periodic checkup. I want an endless campaign against all criminals and I intend to get it. I also call on all law-abiding citizens to aid by notifying police of any suspicion they may have concerning known or suspected criminals."

The governor's order came while citizens still were crying out against the attempted kidnaping. Some pointed out that the homes of a score of state officials were under police guard and demanded that law and order take immediate charge.

Among the homes guarded was the North Providence mansion of Secretary of State Cappelli, where two gunmen slugged a maid in the unsuccessful attempt to kidnap the state official's young son.

Supple to Fight Return to Trial

An extradition battle loomed today to block plans for speedy prosecution of Former City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan and two associates in the defunct Legal Securities Corporation.

Indicted in connection with charges of bribery, larceny, and conspiracy to steal from the city, Edward J. Supple, former official of the finance company, was reported ready to fight his return to this state.

Supple, who is said to be in the South, did not appear yesterday when Dolan was held in $6000 bail and J. Walter Quinn under $5000 bond for trial.

District Attorney William J. Foley was reported preparing extradition papers for use as soon as Supple is found.

Supple was key witness in the suit brought by the city to recover $131,000 and interest in alleged secret profits made by Dolan while he was city treasurer.

In view of the absent defendant's importance in the preceding court battle, observers held that should he be successful in his efforts to avoid trial, the state would be hard pressed in securing convictions on the five indictments.

Asks Doctor Pay $30,000 for Leg

Suit for $30,000 for the loss of his left leg in a surgical operation brought by Nelson Hasson of the Republic of Lebannon against Charles D. McCann of Brockton went on trial before Judge Hugh D. McLellan and a jury in United States district court today.

Dr. McCann on the stand denied the alleged injury to Hasson, a Brockton shoe worker, was caused by negligence or lack of due care and declared that Hasson voluntarily assumed the risk of injury.

Hasson in his declaration contended Dr. McCann performed an unnecessary operation in a "negligent and unskilled manner" and left the stump of the leg in such a way that an artificial leg cannot be properly fitted.

MILLIONS MORE FOR FINER TOBACCOS!

IS IT GOOD BUSINESS TO BUY COSTLIER TOBACCOS FOR CAMELS?

the answer is: Camels are the Largest-Selling cigarette in America

Smokers do find something choice . . . something distinctly different . . . in Camels. For the pleasure you get out of a cigarette depends on what's put in it. And in the case of Camels that means finer, costlier tobaccos!

"YOU CAN BET all the 12 years I've been playing ball with the New York Yankees, I've been careful about my nerves. Smoke? Sure! All I want to. My cigarette is Camel," says LOU GEHRIG, Baseball's Iron Man. "With Camels I don't worry about jangled nerves."

"FROM ANY ANGLE, Camel is the cigarette for yours truly. When I'm tired, I light a Camel and back to work I go with a 'lift' in energy," FRANK MULLADY, auto mechanic, says. "I smoke Camels right around the clock. Those Camel tobaccos sure hit home with me."

"FOR YEARS I'VE chosen Camels. Their mild flavor appeals to my sense of delicacy. Even after I've smoked steadily, I notice Camels leave no after-taste," remarks MAXINE HOLLEN, department store salesgirl. "When I'm all in, I get a 'lift' with a Camel in a jiffy."

THROUGH the years, Camel has consistently spent millions of dollars more for choice, ripe tobaccos!

That represents a way of doing business that smokers understand and appreciate. Millions of smokers have responded to the appeal of Camel's choice quality. Because of it, Camels have an attraction all their own!

It's a happy experience to have confidence in your cigarette...to know that you are getting the good things out of smoking that you hope for. The plain fact that Camel does spend millions of dollars more for ripe, more costly tobaccos appeals to the common sense of American men and women.

It is good business!

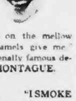
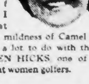
"I'VE BEEN a sports reporter for twenty-five years, with plenty of excitement, rush, and hard work packed into each year," says JAMES GOULD. "And for twenty-three of these years—right from the time Camels were first brought out—I've been a steady Camel smoker. Camels don't tire my taste."

THE NEW CAMEL CARAVAN—TWO GREAT SHOWS IN AN HOUR'S ENTERTAINMENT!

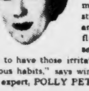
Includes "Jack Oakie College" and Benny Goodman's "Swing School"! Sixty fast minutes of grand fun and music. Every Tuesday night at 9:30 p m E. S. T., 8:30 p m C. S. T., 7:30 p m M. S. T., 6:30 p m P. S. T., over WABC-Columbia Network.



"CAMELS are the ideal cigarette for me. As a fashion designer accustomed to spending long night hours creating new styles, I've grown to depend on the mellow companionship Camels give me," says the internationally famous designer, RENEE MONTAGUE.



"EVEN during a strenuous golf schedule, I smoke Camels constantly without a sign of 'nerves.' I guess that the natural mildness of Camel cigarettes has a lot to do with that!" says HELEN HICKS, one of the world's great women golfers.



"I SMOKE Camels from breakfast to bedtime, and my nerves stay serene and unruffled. You see, I don't want to have those irritating little nervous habits," says window display expert, POLLY PETTIT.

"DUCK, SWORDFISH STEAK, and Boston cream pie—my favorites—aren't the most digestible foods. But I team up with Camels at mealtimes and my digestion does a swell job," says BRUCE WALLIS, college senior.

COSTLIER TOBACCOS IN A MATCHLESS BLEND

Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic. The skillful blending of leaf with leaf brings out the full, delicate flavor and mildness of these choice tobaccos. That's why Camels have given more people more pleasure than any other cigarette.

Bag, Golf Clubs In Montague Trial Data

State Also Brings Auto Papers Into Court Fight

ELIZABETHTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 22 (INS)—A battered Gladstone bag, a set of golf sticks and an automobile driver's license found in a wrecked bandit car seven years ago were introduced in evidence here today in an effort to link John Montague, Hollywood's golfing wizard, to a roadhouse "stickup" near Jay, N. Y., on August 5, 1930.

The move followed failure of Matt Cobb, 78 and hard of hearing, to identify Montague definitely as the man who beat him with a blackjack during the holdup. Asked if he could point out his assailant, the aged father-in-law of the roadhouse owner at first pointed at "Monty" and then became uncertain, saying:

AGED MAN UNCERTAIN

"That man (Montague) is fatter across the face."

The state contends the contents of the bag and the golf sticks belonged to Laverne Moore, now known as Montague.

Introduction of the bag and the golf clubs as evidence was made over the vigorous objections of defense counsel as Sergeant Paul McGinnis of the New York state police was on the stand.

McGinnis and another trooper pursued one of the two bandit cars immediately after the robbery. The car they chased contained two of the bandits, John Sherry and William Carlson. This car, a Ford, was wrecked and Sherry killed.

The other two bandits, one of whom was Roger Norton, escaped in the other car. Norton testified yesterday that Moore, or Montague, was with him in the robbery.

TELLS OF PACKAGES

McGinnis testified he found three packages containing money in the wrecked bandit car—and also several things the prosecution contends belonged to Laverne Moore.

Included in the contents of the car was an automobile registration issued in 1930 to Matthew M. Moore.

Montague's father is Matthew Moore of Syracuse, N. Y. Montague's real name is Laverne Matthew Moore.

The bag also contained a driver's license issued June 14, 1930, to Laverne Moore.

Two Lose Lives In Sewer

fested him. As he hung limp from his lifeline, Byrnes tugged at it and finally dragged him to the street level.

HUNT FOR BODIES

Within a few minutes the swirling waters mounted to the street level and all hope of rescuing the trapped men waned.

The sewer main, through which the men were swept, has an outlet at the East Boston pumping station. Shortly after the tragedy, Statz's [illegible] hat floated into view. Police were stationed there in an effort to recover the bodies.

Meanwhile Byrnes and an emergency crew from the Metropolitan District Commission searched for the bodies in elbows of pipe nearby. They fear the bodies will become wedged in some intersection too small to allow passage.

Firemen and police aided other workmen in an effort to recover the bodies.

A diver will be lowered through one of the pit holes near the pumping station, in a search for the bodies of the victims if all other efforts fail.

Gang Is Hunted In Gem Thefts

Another Cambridge gem theft—the fourth in the past week—today put Cambridge police on the trail of a gang of organized jewel thieves believed responsible for the breaks.

A total of more than $3000 in jewels has now been stolen. The latest victims were Mr. and Mrs. William M. Ashley of Perrysburg, O., stopping with Professor Joseph Beale of Harvard, at his Chauncey street home in Cambridge.

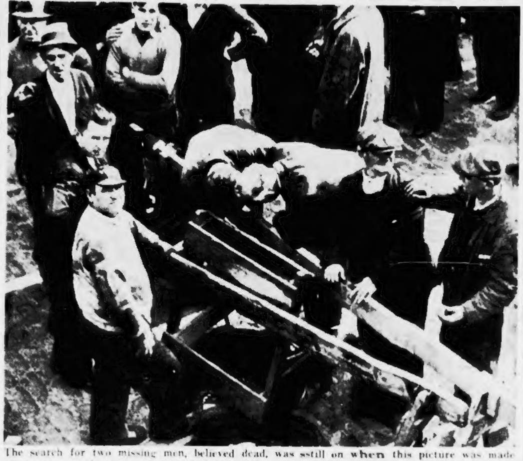
Baggage containing jewelry, furs and clothing, valued at close to $2500, was stolen from their car parked outside the home of Professor Beale, shortly before midnight.

Kelly Seeks Full Council Report

Lieutenant-Governor Francis E. Kelly today announced that he would ask Governor Hurley to order a complete stenographic record of the governor's council meetings taken in the future for use by councillors.

Kelly denounced the "incomplete report of last week's meeting." It was at this meeting that he opposed confirmation of governor's secretary, John V. Mahoney, as judge of the Suffolk county Probate court.

Where Torrent Took 2 Men's Lives



The search for two missing men, believed dead, was still on when this picture was made of rescue crew about a manhole at Spruce and Second streets, Chelsea. The men are Walter Statz, Roxbury, and Arthur F. Peterson. Both were swept from the sewer opening by torrent of water. Michael Rossetti, Roxbury, had narrow escape from death.

$35-$390 Ship Monthly Wage Set for Nov. 1

Merchant Marine Sale Ordered by Kennedy

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—Minimum wages ranging from $35 to $390 a month will go into effect November 1 for officers and crews of 155 federally-subsidized vessels in the merchant marine.

The scale announced by the Maritime Commission affects every ship employe from bell boys to licensed engineer officers.

Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy of the commission said also that cleaner and more comfortable living standards will be required for the 10,000 men included in the order.

Seamen's conduct, even on first-rate vessels, has grown so bad, he said, that passenger complaints pour into commission offices steadily. He blamed a "lack of discipline" for part of the trouble.

The wage scales, Kennedy said, are about the same as those now specified in collective bargaining contracts in force on the West Coast and generally are somewhat higher than East Coast scales.

New in shipping circles was a provision that unlicensed personnel (all the crew except officers) shall be given a week's vacation with pay after a year's continuous service and two weeks in succeeding years. Two-week vacations are ordered for officers.

U. S. Signs 'Leviathan' Contracts

Kennedy O. K.'s Bids On Biggest Ship Ever Built Here

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—A contract for construction of a model safety liner to replace the Leviathan in the North Atlantic service was formally signed today.

The signing was participated in by Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the maritime commission, and officials of the Newport News Shipbuilding & Drydock Corporation and the United States Lines Company of New York.

Building of the vessel, which will be the largest ever constructed in an American shipyard, will begin at once at the Newport News, Va., yards of the shipbuilding corporation, Kennedy said.

The contract specifies the liner must be completed within 802 days.

The vessel will be a twin screw combination mail, passenger and cargo liner, having a displacement of 34,000 tons at load draft. It will have an overall length of 723 feet and a speed of approximately 22 knots. There will be accommodations for about 1200 passengers and a crew of about 630.

Glass Fragments Trap Autoist

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 22 (AP)—Three small pieces of glass and a laboratory analysis of stains on a mudguard today resulted in the arrest of a hit-and-run driver suspect.

Mrs. Ellen Burns, 75, was killed Tuesday night as she crossed a street. Police found pieces of a broken headlight, the only clue. Piecing the glass together, they learned the make of car and later found an automobile of the same make.

Stains on a bumper were analyzed by a chemist as blood spots.

Police Chief Victor I. Moore asserted that Robert L. Marden, 23, admitted he was the driver of the car.

Hahn Jury Hears Of Other Death

CINCINNATI, Oct. 22 (AP)—A Denver hotel manager testified in the poison-murder trial of Anna Marie Hahn today that she registered at his hotel July 25 with George Obendoerfer, who died a week later in Colorado Springs.

Mrs. Hahn is charged with the poison killing of Jacob Wagner, 78, but a court order today permitted testimony concerning deaths of other aged men, including Obendoerfer, 67-year-old Cincinnati cobbler.

The state contends Obendoerfer, Wagner and others were poisoned for their money.

The hotel manager testified Mrs. Hahn was the only person to take food to Obendoerfer's room.

Debs Wear Finest to Their First Junior League Meeting

By BETTY ALDEN

SECOND ONLY to the few nervous hours before her own coming out party, the greatest anxiety of a debutante's first year out is experienced as she wonders whether or not she will be selected for membership in the Junior League . . .

The anxiety is over for another year, however, for the chosen girls received their invitations and met for the first time at the League clubhouse at Zero Marlborough street yesterday afternoon . . . Little badges bearing their names were pinned on the lapels of their suits or coats so officers of the league could call each one by name as they chatted over the tea cups . . . and each arriving debutante had to face a battery of photographers and give her name to all the society reporters who were waiting to see which girls "made" the league . . .

JANE HARTE

Until they prove they have an aptitude for social and public welfare work, and pass a regular course designed to make them proficient in the league's activities, these new members are called "provisionals," and are not eligible to full fledged membership . . .

After Mrs. James M. Parker, president of the league, and other officers, told the new girls a bit about the history and aims of the organization, the provisionals held their first business meeting . . . Most important business, of course, was electing their chairman and vice-chairman . . . which honors were carried off by Rosamond Hamlin and Nancy Peabody . . .

Among the debutantes who received invitations to yesterday's meeting, and thus joined the ranks of Junior League provisional members were Helen Claflin of Belmont, who arrived in a foursome with Polly Morrill, Ellen Moseley and Grace Heard . . . Miss Moseley's costume was one of the most striking of the afternoon, for with her deep plum angora wool dress she wore a draped beret of the same fabric and a red fox scarf to which were pinned two enormous orchids . . .

As you see by the accompanying picture Jane Plimpton and Phoebe Prentice were a modish pair as they hurried along to attend the meeting . . . the former in black and white tweeds and the latter in all black with one of the new bonnets draped with a voluminous veil . . .

All Were Modishly Dressed

CINDERS HASKELL, of course, made the League, as did Harriet Brooks and Nancy Stevens, Mary Eliot and "Jodie" Perry, who attended together . . .

Nearly every one of the girls was modishly dressed . . . for that was a very special occasion . . . but among those who stood out as particularly smart were Jane Pickman, whose costumes always look as though they were chosen with care for fashion details . . . Her suit was palest gray wool with a little stiff turban of the same fabric, fringed feather ornament on one side . . . Olivia Ames is another very well dressed young lady . . . and her outfit yesterday combined a pleated gray wool dress with a short chinchilla cape, a black velvet turban, black gloves and slippers . . .

Jane Harte, who was in a foursome with Tillie Tuckerman, Camilla Warren and Catherine Putnam, was another who chose pale gray . . . hers accented with a dubonnet stripe in her hat . . .

Nancy Falvey, whose mother, Mrs. Charles A. Falvey, was also present at the tea, wore a royal blue velvet dress with a little winged turban combining the blue with black velvet . . .

Still others who have received provisional membership are Helen Blanchard, Hope Humphries, Nancy Nye, Anne Brown, Helen Addison, who made her debut last evening; Ann Cutler, Margaret Mason, Jean and Barbara Hoyt, daughters of Mrs. Myers Hoyt of Cooperstown, N.Y.; Nancy Tucker, Nancy Osgood, Virginia Prout, Josefa Richmond and Daphne Withington . . .

Also Anne Motley, Lee Hyde, Mrs. George Parsons, Mrs. R. S. Fenn, Mary Gray, Nancy Whittier, Angela Lang, Beatrice Lowell and many others . . .

Junior League Selection Makes Debs Happy

PHOEBE PRENTICE JANE PLIMPTON

Phoebe Prentice, daughter of Mrs. Charles P. Curtis, Jr., of Joy street, and Jane Plimpton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Plimpton of Cambridge, are two of the attractive debutantes elected to provisional membership in the Junior League. They attended their first meeting and tea at the League headquarters at Zero Marlborough street yesterday afternoon.

Miss Lena Ready Weds Saturday

Miss Lena Elizabeth Ready, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Ready of Brookline, will become the bride of Charles Christian Hornbostel, of Boston, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hornbostel of Evansville, Ind., tomorrow afternoon.

The ceremony will be performed at four o'clock in the vestry of St. Lawrence's Church in Brookline, and will be followed by a reception at the Brae Burn Country Club.

Mrs. John Reid Baine of Brookline will be her sister's matron of honor and Nina Marie Baine, niece of the bride, will be the flower girl. Edward Schrader of New York will act as Mr. Hornbostel's best man.

The bride is a graduate of Wellesley College and Mr. Hornbostel graduated from Harvard College and the Harvard School of Business Administration. After a honeymoon trip through the West, they plan to return about November 15 to reside at 45 Strathmore road, Brookline.

Harvard Grad To Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Kerr of Covington, Ky., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Joan, to Theodore T. Scudder, Jr., of Boston, son of Mrs. Sturgis Knight of Providence and Theodore T. Scudder of Boston.

Miss Kerr attended the Hillsdale School in Cincinnati, O., and the University of Cincinnati. She was presented to society during the 1933 season and is a member of the Junior League of Cincinnati.

Mr. Scudder prepared for college at St. George's School in Newport, and graduated from Harvard with the class of 1934.

Aids Plans For Dance

ALICE SLAVIN of Jamaica Plain chairmans a committee of Jamaica Plain girls arranging a gay Halloween fiesta next Friday evening at the Fox and Hounds Club.

Sharing Halloween's eerie spotlight next Friday evening will be the Arborwight Club of Jamaica Plain, which is holding a supper dance at the Fox and Hound Club.

Novel plans are being made by an energetic committee: Eleanor Clougher, Arlene Whalen, Marion Cunningham, Ruth Donovan, Ann Whalen, Margaret Burns, Kay Fleming and Alice Slavin.

Infant Saviour Fete Planned

The crystal and white ballroom of the Copley-Plaza will gleam with added splendor Friday evening, November 5, when the Guild of Infant Saviour stages its annual supper dance in aid of its charity fund.

At the guest party, the favored boxes with their [illegible] of the dance floor will be filled with smartly gowned women; a delightful supper menu has been planned and a gala floor show awaits the subscribers. Mrs. William Drummey is chairman.

TICKET COMMITTEE

Tickets for the party are being sold by Mrs. Edgar J. Driscoll, Mrs. Robert J. Reilly, one of the guild's former presidents, chairman of the recreation committee, and Mrs. Frederic J. Crosby and Mrs. James J. Regan are sharing the duties of chairman of the patroness list.

Attractive Mrs. Russell Riley, the former Aileen Crimmings, has charge of the usher list, and Mrs. John Winthrop Gahan, whose benefit lecture is slated for this evening at the Medford home of her mother-in-law, Mrs. P. J. Gahan, too, will direct a bevy of pretty girls selling cigarettes and flowers.

A prominent group of Bostonians is serving as guarantors of the event: Mrs. Mary H. Costello, Mrs. Edward C. Donnelly, Mrs. George McCarthy, Edward J. O'Connell, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick O'Connell, Mrs. James J. Phelan, Julia Prendergast and Mr. and Mrs. Franklin H. Stuart.

AMONG SPONSORS

Among the early sponsors are Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Ahern, Dr. and Mrs. Francis J. Barnes, Mrs. John T. Bottomley, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Connor, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice J. Curran, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic J. Crosby, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Curley and Mr. and Mrs. William Drummey.

Others who will entertain guests at the ball are Mr. and Mrs. James F. Gaffney, Mr. and Mrs. William H. J. Kennedy, Mrs. Andrew Lane, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Madden, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Malley, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. O'Connor, Dr. and Mrs. William T. O'Halloran, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew P. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Tomasello, Charles J. O'Malley and Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Vollono.

Men More Domestic Than Women?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A few days ago a new find in the way of movie stars flashed from Hollywood to New York to take ship for her native England. In an interview she said:

"Marriage is a bore—a barbarous bore. I shall never be in a position again where I shall have to ask a man's permission to go out and come in. Never!"

But aren't this lady's ideas, for all her vaunted emancipation, a bit Victorian? To find a wife these days who has to ask permission to go in and out seems to be a case of looking for hen's teeth.

This brings us round to the different conceptions or ideals which men and women hold regarding what's a good husband or wife.

The English movie star, who seems to be the latest in British beauties, doesn't think much of husbands. She confessed to having had one once, but she dropped him, and now it's a case of "never again."

IT'S STILL POPULAR

But marriage isn't going out of fashion, just because a certain woman thinks it's a bore. It happens to be the ambition of 99 women out of a 100 and the hundredth could very likely be persuaded to murmur a "yes" if the right man came along.

We're beginning to know much more about marriage than we did even a generation ago, with nearly every college having a class in domestic relations and the gentle art of staying married once you've gone-and-done-it.

Statistics have been gathered from a number of these college courses, and, unbelievable as it may seem, the average girl's idea of a good companion and perfect husband is not one who will contribute a limousine to her comfort, string her with pearls and permit charge accounts ad lib.

A good husband, to the average woman, is one who will continue to be her lover, who knows how to pay her a compliment, even though her permanent has become stringy, and whose kisses have at least a dash of movie ardor.

"Ah, there's the rub," as Hamlet said, though he didn't have in mind the wifely exasperation of the average woman when her husband gives her a hurried after-breakfast kiss, strongly flavored with bacon and eggs.

Believe it or not, according to these college professors who conduct fact-finding courses for matrimony, feminine girls will ride in a bus and pass up silk stockings, if only friend husband will not forget how to make love.

Of course, there are gold-digging wives as well as gold-digging sirens, and such ladies are not being discussed at the moment.

THE IDEAL WOMAN

A man's idea of a good wife, still quoting the same college course authorities, is one who "represents" him.

He wants a woman he can be proud of, whether he's an odd-job man or belongs to the ever-dwindling group of millionaires.

He doesn't like to be regarded as a "poor picker" when it comes to the lady who bears his name.

He hopes there may be something in the way of a home, with actual food and a comfortable chair in which he can read his newspaper.

He doesn't expect too much in the way of domesticity these days.

He has seen too many of his friends perched on stools opposite soda fountains and he prays that fate may not be his, at least not continuously.

But, oh girls, listen to this! The fact-finding professors are discovering that men are more domestic than women.

Married Comrades

RONALD AND MADGE LEAVE THE MEN

CHAPTER 438

"YOU mustn't let Hector become a nuisance," Miss Whitton said with concern as the parrot nestled his head close into my neck, and appeared to be preparing to go to sleep on my shoulder.

"He couldn't be," I told her, and was rewarded by the gleam of pleasure that came into her eyes.

Then as if it sensed that it was time to leave, the creature made its ungainly progress down my arm, croaked an uncanny "Good-by," and made its way down the tablecloth to the floor, and from thence to the desk where Miss Whitton sat.

"Good thing, that," Dicky said. "He knows the party's over."

I caught his eye and gave him our private signal which means that I want to speak to him alone. He nodded imperceptibly to the others, and a little later, when we had risen from the table, he adroitly managed to get near enough for me to murmur unheard by the Bristows.

"Ronald wants to speak to me alone," I said, and Dicky murmured back in the same fashion, "Okay. I'll fix it."

I touched Ronald's arm and went swiftly into the other room out of their sight.

"Let's go on out to the cars," I said softly, and then spoke for the benefit of the attendant at the door.

"Will you kindly tell the others of our party that we have gone out to the car?" I said. "They are looking at the books, and I have no idea how long they will be."

"It will probably be dark before my husband remembers where he is," I said with an answering smile, and then Ronald and I were outside and walking swiftly toward the waiting cars.

"You would better be on your own cat," he said. "Then you will be all ready to start back. Gosh! you don't know how grateful I am to you and Mr. Graham for bringing Dad up here."

"You mustn't forget," I said, "that you wanted to speak to me alone. I must warn you that we have very little time. My husband will keep your stepfather in there as long as possible, but you know how impatient he will be to get home to your mother."

Finding The Entry

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Everyone knows how important it sometimes is to give partner the lead.

Note the skill with which West accomplished his object in the hand below.

South, dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

The nine of spades was led from dummy. East played low, and South ducked, permitting West to win with the Queen.

West's problem was now acute. He was sure of two trump tricks and could obtain a club ruff if his partner could get the lead. Thus, getting into East's hand would produce the two extra tricks needed to defeat the contract.

If East had either red Ace, West could get into his partner's hand by leading one of the red suits at this point, and the other red suit (if necessary) when he took his Ace of spades.

But it was possible that East had the King and Queen of hearts, in which case it would be necessary for West to lead hearts twice. West thought again and decided that even if the first heart lead produced the Queen from his partner and the Ace from declarer, he would still be in the dark as to which player had the King of hearts.

West finally decided that his best lead was the Queen of diamonds. If this produced no co-operation from his partner, West would later lead a heart. By this means West combined two chances: that his partner had one of the two red Aces, or that his partner had the King and ten of diamonds.

The latter was indeed the case and East co-operated nobly by covering his partner's Queen with the King of diamonds. Declarer could not now make his contract. He could not afford to let East hold the King of diamonds for then West would get the club ruff immediately.

Self-Made Girl

CHAPTER 35

Lynn hadn't heard from Connie since she came to San Francisco, nor had she any answer to the thank-you letter she wrote Mr. Scott.

Well, that part of her life was all over. No use getting sentimental about it. She was nothing to Connie, and Connie was just a name to conjure by, for her.

She lay back on the pillow and shut her eyes. Carols at 6 o'clock! Waking a person up! There ought to be a law against it!

The family's Christmas gifts were all there on the table, waiting to be opened. Might as well do it now. She always dreaded it.

A big box from Della and Lawrie and little Bobby, with love to Linda, and lots of excelsior and a pink glass cream pitcher inside. Now, what in the world did they think she wanted with a cream pitcher?

"YOU'RE CRYING"

She was sitting up in bed, having a good, quiet cry, with the presents strewn all around her, when Mrs. Burns came in without knocking, to see if she was awake.

"I just thought if you were, dearie, I'd send Annie up with a tray for you. They're all getting up at odd hours today and I told her not to bother trying to serve at the table downstairs—why, dearie, you've been crying!"

"No, I'm not—truly I'm not."

"Well, you won't be, soon's you see what the senator's got for you downstairs. Now you go jump into the tub and get yourself all pretty, and by the time you're ready I'll have Annie up with your tray—and I'll bring up the senator's box from under the tree, and then you'll feel better."

The senator's box, almost as large as a [illegible], Annie and Mrs. Burns waited expectantly while she opened it—

"Oh, Mrs. Burns—two silver foxes—the most beautiful scarf I ever saw!—Oh, I can't let him give me this—Why, I've only known him such a little while—it doesn't seem right."

Mrs. Burns tapped her pocket. "Hush. We all got ours. All his relations, too. An ermine wrap for your friend Mrs. Hoarce Roth—and don't think she didn't hint good and strong for it."

"Oh, but she's his niece—his grand niece, or whatever you call it. How can I possibly—"

"Just take it, dearie. Take it while the taking's good—"

"Yes, Miss Perry—we all did well. He's always does good by everybody on Christmas—"

A GREAT HOLIDAY

In the afternoon [illegible] with [illegible] and [illegible] the old-fashioned Christmas dinner [illegible] at the table, and [illegible] speeches [illegible].

"Such a wonderful person, the dear Senator! Such a mind!" everyone told Linda, [illegible].

And at last they were all gone. Can things go too well, Linda wondered, when the first of February found her [illegible] established in her very own apartment, only five blocks from the senator's home.

Everything was perfect. Everything went beautifully.

Senator Arnold told her he hated to have her move, but he knew how young people liked to spread their wings, and it was quite all right if she felt that way; only she'd need more money, and two hundred and fifty wasn't really half as much as she was worth to him.

So, short of Emily's talk, [illegible] into having a part-time maid, and she paid more than she'd first intended for the apartment.

The senator opened his house in the Santa Cruz mountains and Linda had the first vacation she'd had in years, with nothing to do but lie in the sun until it got too hot and then move back to the shade. She swam, she hiked, she danced and she rode a horse, and had a grand time.

She had three boy friends before [illegible] who was [illegible].

BLANCHE'S WARNING

But no girl friends. That is, none that she could really talk to. So she wrote more than she should have to Blanche, and Blanche wrote back warning her, advising her, hoping that "everything was all right."

[illegible] at once amused and [illegible] Linda.

"And you ought to save your money and not spend so much on living," Blanche wrote.

"Because you never can tell what will happen, and where would you ever find another position like the one you have? And, as much as we all love you, dear, we could not help you financially, I'm afraid."

[illegible] worry about THAT [illegible].

SHOULD SHE MARRY?

Urges Parents Aid Auto Laws

Asked to Set Good Example to Children

[illegible] Massachusetts [illegible] Massachusetts Parent Teachers Convention [illegible]

"How can you expect a boy or girl to obey the laws," she asks, "when the parents themselves break the laws?"

"If father passes several red lights while taking the children to school in the morning, isn't it natural that the children should do likewise?"

"The education of safety rules and regulations is largely up to parents. The schools do all they can, and so do the safety councils. But a great deal of the problem is still up to parents. And without their cooperation, our aims can never be fully realized."

Jack Ennis Freed In Doctor Death

OBEY OR QUIT Set No. 3—Human Problem No. 14

On the faculty of a world famous New England University, there long has been — and still is — a distinguished professor of geology.

Noted as a "liberal," he bitterly opposed the Massachusetts Teachers' Oath Law.

He said publicly that he would not willingly obey the law by swearing allegiance to state and federal constitutions.

Yet the university president announced that colleges, like individuals, must bow to the authority of the Commonwealth.

In a formal statement, the president said: "The university will dismiss any faculty member who does not take the Teachers' Oath."

The rebellious professor could no longer postpone his final choice. He had to quit his job or obey the law.

SET 3—Human Problem No. 14

One of the two conclusions given below was taken from the original story. See Rules. Select the one you consider correct.

A He took the oath.

B He resigned from the faculty.

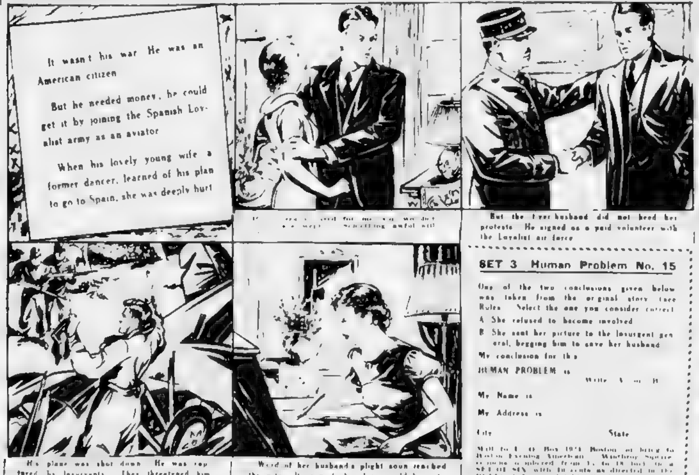
LOVE GREATER THAN PRIDE Set No. 3—Human Problem No. 15



It wasn't his war. He was an American citizen.
But he needed money. he could get it by joining the Spanish Loyalist army as an aviator.
When his lovely young wife, a former dancer, learned of his plan to go to Spain, she was deeply hurt.
[illegible] Something awful will [illegible]
But the fiery husband did not heed her protests. He signed as a paid volunteer with the Loyalist air force.
His plane was shot down. He was captured by Insurgents. They threatened him with death before a firing squad.
Word of her husband's plight soon reached the wife. It seemed she alone could hope to aid him.

MODERN "WILLIAM TELL" Set No. 3—Human Problem No. 16

Something had gone wrong!
Dangling helplessly from a cluster of hydrogen balloons, a newsreel cameraman was floating high above earth.
The tie rope, intended to anchor the balloons safely, had broken.
The clergyman was an expert marksman. He borrowed a rifle. The balloons were rising higher, drifting faster.
The target was not an easy one. [illegible] the cameraman, a tiny black figure hanging from the soaring gas bags.

SET 3 Human Problems No. 16

One of the two conclusions given below was taken from the original story (see Rules). Select the one you consider correct.

A. The clergyman aimed and fired, puncturing two balloons and bringing the cameraman down safe.

B. The clergyman refused to shoot.

Guess Roundup On Saturday's Football Games

AUSTEN LAKE

HARVARD VS. DARTMOUTH—Green is Nature's favorite color, caused by chlorophyll, the coloring substance to be found in leaves and grass. James Bryant Conant did much research in this science before being elected president of Harvard, but without discovering the secret of the Big Green's virulence on the stadium turf. So here comes Dartmouth, a little on the salad side, but full of Vitamin P, which is the pigskin vitamin. One mild guess for Dartmouth.

BOSTON COLLEGE-DETROIT Gus D[illegible]rais, the Detroit coach, was [illegible] passing half of the Knute R[illegible] partnership which made Notre Dame football famous in 1913. [illegible] Major Cavanaugh, who built [illegible] post war reputation, used to say [illegible] become known as the Rockne [illegible] had originated and perfected. B[illegible] are ever wonder now and I expect [illegible] sunny bank of some cloud [illegible] putting down little crosses and [illegible] on paper and wrangling about their [illegible] to two great guys and a [illegible]

HOLY CROSS-WESTERN MARYLAND—West Md., the first college in the South to offer equal educational opportunities to both sexes, is Harvard Dick Harlow's former coaching post. It is located in the town of Westminster, noted for its canneries and hermetically sealed foods. One [illegible] lunch for Holy Cross and one point for West Md. for trying.

Bull Pups, Sin and Execution

BROWN-COLUMBIA—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia, is also head of the Carnegie Foundation, which exposed football hypocrisies in its famous Bulletin 23, and listed the Doctor's own institution among the tainted. Brown has tiptoed through the [illegible] with a wreath of virtue in its hair and taken pretty regular lickings for its purity. One big rousing [illegible] for sin and sympathy for virtue.

PRINCETON-RUTGERS—A sentimental meeting be[illegible] intercollegiate fo[illegible] Rutgers [illegible] the occasion [illegible] suspenders and [illegible] Princeton [illegible] singing copied [illegible] N. Y. regiment astounded [illegible] men posted on each side carrying [illegible] was advanced by kicking [illegible] Rutgers won that one 6 goals to 4 [illegible] when it was fashionable and usual to [illegible] Rutgers. Hence a S[illegible] execution by the Tigers.

Soap, Failure and Superior Learning

COLGATE-DUKE—When Samuel Colgate first mixed some hog fat, potash and perfume in 1867 and made the soap called Cashmere Bouquet; when James B. Duke formed a tobacco firm in 1880, the foundations of two great university fortunes were begun. Colgate's lucky laboratory concoction became useful in washing off nicotine stains from smoking Duke's Mixture, and both made millions which later built great universities. One Saturday night bath for Duke and a vote for Colgate.

NOTRE DAME-NAVY—If this Notre Dame team is licked by Navy it will be referred to in years to come as the team [illegible] three games in a row. It has been many years [illegible] Notre Dame team failed to win more than [illegible] and it is barely possible that N. D. [illegible] with teams like Minnesota, Pittsburgh, Army, Northwestern and Southern Cal, following Navy. A [illegible] for Navy.

CORNELL-YALE—When Ezra Cornell founded Cornell in 1865 he said, "Let us build an institution where any person can find superior learning on any subject." The instruction was good during Gil Dobie professorship of football, but the learning was poor. Hence Carl Snavely was called from North Carolina in 1936 to reorganize the department. Some husky scholars entered coincidentally with his arrival and the learning picked up to a degree where Cornell beat Colgate and Princeton by large scores this year. One guess of transparent thinness for Yale.

Gouty Rumpot and High Priced Steak

AMHERST-WESLEYAN—Lord Geoffrey Amherst is a mystical [illegible] a soldier of the king. A gawdy portrait of [illegible] bewigged, scarlet-coated old lime [illegible] a bulbous nosed and gouty [illegible] The Amherst boys sing a tongue-in-the-cheek [illegible] the Indians he didn't do a [illegible] Yet the old geezer never knew [illegible] famed for its colonial sweetness in a [illegible] to Hanover, N. H.—A vote for Amherst.

FORDHAM-TEXAS CHRISTIAN—The rodeo's original roots were set in the big cattle drives along the historic Chisholm trail from the Texas cow-country to Fort Worth. In those carefree days longhorns ran wild on the "lone prayeree" and weren't worth $2.00 a head. Now you can't buy a steak as large as a postage stamp for that. Still, when it comes to horsemen, Jim Crowley, Fordham head coach, was reckoned pretty pert when he was riding the range with Stuhldreher, Miller and Layden at Notre Dame. One for Fordham.

Tough Indians are Mr. Foley's meat. The reputation of the famed Dartmouth eleven fails to annoy Frankie Foley, brilliant Harvard halfback. The Boston Latin school product has been going great guns all season and expects to keep rolling at the expense of the Green tomorrow afternoon.

HARVARD SAYS IT WITH COIN

Ready to Accept All Green Wagers at 10-8

By BILL GRIMES

There's a large wad of Harvard notes in readiness to swamp the first Dartmouth enthusiast who believes the Indians of the North are better than a 10 to 8 favorite to win tomorrow's conflict at the Stadium.

During the past three years Crimson backers have lost considerable money wagering against Dartmouth. In fact, they have financed many Yale and Princeton trips for Big Green alumni and undergraduates. And at ridiculously short odds.

For what they did to Bates, Amherst, Springfield and Brown, the Indians could be brought in on mayhem charges.

But they have yet to be tested.

On the other hand, Harvard has been under fire. The Crimson piled up 88 points against Springfield and Brown and then played a scoreless tie with the powerful Navy eleven.

13 LETTERMEN GONE

Individually, the Big Green may be entitled to be favored over Harvard. But, with its new line and its couple of backfield replacements, Dartmouth is a miracle club if it can measure up to the Crimson as a unit.

The Indians are shy just 13 of last year's lettermen, and Captain Merrill Davis and Bob McLeod will be the only hold-overs who started against the Crimson last season.

Neither Dartmouth nor Harvard has been beaten this fall, although the Crimson is not a member of the ultra-elite group because of its deadlock with the Sailors.

In all probability, Dartmouth is stronger than is generally surmised. Coach Blaik and his assistants groomed the present line while the seniors were carrying on last season. He has acquired a great sophomore back in Bill Hutchinson.

But, as I see it, if Harvard could make as many errors as it did and still get an even break with Navy, Dartmouth is heading into the toughest brand of opposition it has encountered in the Stadium in five years.

STRUCK A DANDY

Coach Dick Harlow has developed the smoothest functioning machine that has worn the crimson in many seasons.

Vernon Struck is the key of the Crimson offense, and that department could not be in better hands. Few of even the closest followers of Harvard [illegible] realize Struck's capabilities as a ball handler. He has mastered that art to the [illegible] and the Big Green [illegible] particularly alert [illegible] avoid being [illegible] by Mr. Struck.

"Chief" Boston Artie Oakes and Torb Macdonald are superior to the general run of Crimson backs of the last few years.

They have been drilled thoroughly in their offensive assignments by Dick Harlow and as a unit they [illegible] the best Harvard has offered in a decade.

The Crimson was the victim of over anxiety in the Navy game. The players will not be under any such strain tomorrow, for they received their baptism of heavy gunfire a week ago in Baltimore.

Although they realize that the Big Green will prove a worthy foe, the wearers of the Crimson acquired much valuable experience during the Navy game and should have more poise and co-ordination while battling the Big Green.

Dartmouth, particularly its coaches, appreciates the fact that Harvard is one of the toughest assignments on its schedule. And it's questionable if any but the more flighty of the betting gentry will see its way clear to offer more alluring odds than 10 to 8.

And if they succumb to the "give-your-all-for-dear-old Dartmouth" spirit and start to broadcast in the presence of Harvard men "Six 'll get you ten," it's an even bet that the nearest many of them will get to the Yale and Princeton games will be a radio.

Harvard Has Edge In Green Series

Harvard will be going after its 30th triumph over Dartmouth tomorrow in the Stadium in a rivalry extending back to 1882.

The records show Dartmouth credited with 11 victories while there has been a relatively small number of ties (3).

Dartmouth scored first in 1901, but their maiden win over the Crimson did not come until 1903—a sweet victory indeed for the Hanoverians, for it was the occasion of the dedication of Harvard's Stadium.

Aerial Game Anticipated

Both Teams Boast Fine Passers

It looks as if the Harvard Stadium is going to be the scene of an aerial barrage tomorrow as Dartmouth faces a [illegible] which has not [illegible] so far this season.

This means that the Harvard [illegible] when they play the game which probably will prove to be [illegible] this season.

It has been Dartmouth's habit to [illegible] years at any rate to use the Harvard game as a [illegible] for its annual clash with Yale.

This season finds the Indians obeying the old maxim about crossing bridges before they are reached and this decided reversal in attitude is most significant.

Very apparently Dartmouth is less confident of victory than it has been for at least three years.

This means that the Big Green can be expected to "shoot the works" from the opening whistle which in turn calls for a spectacular counter attack from the Harvards.

Coach Blaik of Dartmouth has stated that he expects to see his team outplayed up front where a veteran Crimson line will be facing a slightly heavier but much greener first-line defense of the Indians.

This is not a surprising statement when it is remembered that Dartmouth has yet to be tested under the heavy fire of major opponents.

All this would seem to point to a free-scoring game in which an opportunity will be given Harvard's fine crop of pass throwers to show their mettle.

Everything calls for a wide-open attack, the burden of which for the Indians will rest on Hollingworth, MacLeod and Hutchinson, while the Crimson will counter with veteran Artie Oakes and sophomore Torbet MacDonald.

It will be interesting to watch the duel between Hutchinson and MacDonald. It has been bruited about by many that as these two go, so will their teams.

Kramer Picks Green, B. U.

By MURRAY KRAMER

[illegible]

Harvard looked impressive in its first major test against Navy last Saturday . . . many of the Crimson rooters are hopeful of a win over Dartmouth for the first time in many seasons, but the cold dope shows that the Green is much too powerful . . . and although Harvard will be in there fighting every minute, Dartmouth should emerge on top by two touchdowns . . . Boston College meets its toughest foe of the year in Detroit . . . I look for the Eagles to eke out a victory but it should be by only a one-touchdown margin . . . Western Reserve is a 7-5 favorite to extend its streak of 27 undefeated games, but the Terriers have been primed for this battle . . . I look for an upset here with Boston University winning by a whisker.

* * *

Tufts which refuses to run true to form for this corner, has won when we predicted it would get licked and lost when we figured it would win . . . today I am nominating Manly and Co. once again to the losers' column and giving the nod to Williams which should register all right with the Tufts rooters . . . the traditional Rhode Island State-Northeastern battle takes place down at Kingston tomorrow . . . Rhode Island seems just a bit too strong for the Huskies.

Out in the western part of the state, the "Little Three" starts its [illegible]

The one New England game as yet unmentioned which will probably be the outstanding battle in this part of the country is the Yale-Cornell tussle down in New Haven . . . both teams are powerhouses and the fact that Cornell was beaten in an upset by Syracuse makes them just so much tougher . . . however there is nothing like riding with a winner so I'm going to string along with Yale in the hopes that they will remain undefeated.

* * *

Along the Eastern seaboard there are few games of great importance . . . [illegible] should be able to take care of Washington University of St. Louis . . . Villanova [illegible] take care of [illegible] New York University [illegible]

[illegible] New York [illegible] Fordham and Texas Christian University . . . refusing to believe all I hear from New York on the Rams, I'm picking T. C. U. to win . . . I also like Duke to take Colgate in another intersectional affair.

Swinging down toward the South, Baltimore will be the scene of the Notre Dame-Navy clash . . . the Midshipmen are catching the Fighting Irish on the rebound, which means that Elmer Layden's gang will be plenty tough, and on this basis I'm picking the team from South Bend to win by a whisker . . .

[illegible] I'm picking Michigan to take this one . . . The other games in the Midwest should find Michigan State beating Marquette and Nebraska [illegible]

Out in the far West one of the best battles of the day will be staged when California meets Southern California . . . The California Bears are the only major team on the Coast undefeated and are already being hailed as the Rose Bowl team . . . Southern California is the only club that can possibly upset the Bears, and if they can turn the trick tomorrow the Bowl committee will really have quite a problem on its hands . . . Personally, I'm riding with the Bears . . . Washington University, after two disappointing games the last two week-ends, should come back and beat Stanford . . . Oregon will have its troubles with Oregon State, but should wind up on the right side of the ledger.

Brown Team Off For Lions' Game

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 22 (AP)—Confident that they will give the Columbia Lions a stiff argument when they move onto Baker Field tomorrow afternoon, the Brown Bears this morning embarked for New York with a squad of 26 players and the usual retinue of coaches, managers and trainers.

The final pre-game drill for the Bears is slated for this afternoon on the Lions' home pitch.

Six or seven sophomores are again due for starting posts with the cubs.

LATIN

Shades of Bolles, Soucy, Logan

Since this is the first season since 1915 that finds two former Boston Latin graduates rating a first string berth on the Harvard varsity eleven in the persons of Joe Nee and Frank Foley, the recent election of William Redmond Tully, Latin '35, as captain of the freshman football team at Cambridge is most appropriate.

"Red" is a husky young fellow, who, under Coach Charlie Fitz Gerald at Latin, played a whale of a game as an end, but was converted to a pivot-man last season on the Exeter Academy team.

"Is he a comedian?" I asked.

"Did you ever see anything funnier than his fight with Leroy Haynes?" roared Mr. Caplin, defiantly.

Mike Jacobs, the mahout of the heavyweights, was stalking a prospective ticket buyer for tonight's show in the Hipp when I grabbed him.

"But has he that Lubitsch touch?" I demanded.

"I don't know about the Lubitsch touch," Mike said. "But he has been touching me since the day I knew him. But he's got to be a comedian. That let's him out. Where was his sense of humor when I matched Joe Louis to fight Jimmy Braddock. He's out."

Jimmy Braddock, a lop-sidedly handsome guy, was eliminated because he insisted that his wife play Claudette Colbert's part because she was prettier.

Risko to Make Ring Comeback

CLEVELAND, Oct. 22 (AP)—Johnny Risko, out of the ring for almost two years and out of training most of that time, announced today he will try to hit the come back trail.

Danny Dunn, manager of the heavyweight fighter, said he has started light training for a bout late in November at Detroit, probably with Jimmy Adamick, prominent in the motor city boxing picture.

Steve in Splendid Trim for Tuesday Bout at Garden

[illegible]

"I realize Johnson probably is the toughest opponent I have met either in this country or in Europe," Casey told followers after a spirited workout.

"I can imagine that lifting him is like lifting a building. However I expect to trim Tor down to my size and then pin him.

"A man as big as Johnson can't keep up a fast pace like I can. I expect to wear him down and then beat him."

[illegible]

[illegible] weight will tell the story, they declare. If he is smart he will lie on Steve early in the battle. The Crusher will wilt from carrying around such a load and then should be easy for the Swede.

Conant Speaks on Harvard Athletics | Kelley of Yale Shamrock Ace

By JACK CONWAY

PRESIDENT Conant of Harvard will be the principal speaker at the annual dinner of the Harvard Varsity Club at Cambridge tonight.

I have been informed from an authoritative source that President Conant will discuss Harvard's athletic policy. It is significant that President Conant will make his remarks at a time when most colleges are so vitally interested in football.

I feel confident President Conant will extend a friendly hand to athletics, but that he will go on to state that Harvard will adhere to its policy of insisting that members of its varsity teams rank high in scholarship.

MR. BOSTON

Harvard has come a long way in athletics during the past few years under the guidance of Bill Bingham, director of athletics. Bingham has surrounded himself by a strong staff of coaches and other assistants.

Dick Harlow's football team has also displayed exceptional strength. It was powerful enough to hold Navy to a scoreless tie, and it will make a mighty bid to defeat Dartmouth in the Stadium tomorrow afternoon.

NOVICES! REMEMBER JOE LOUIS

Bomber Started as Lowly 'Pure'

No better opportunity to gain experience against boys of the same rating has ever been provided amateurs than in the New England sections, championships of the Hearst All-America bouts.

The Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser, sponsoring the All-America show, want to do everything possible for the beginners.

So these papers are putting in the novice class in the New England Division ALONE in order to build up a new crop of amateur fighters for years to come.

Lest there be any misinterpretation, however, let us repeat that novices will compete ONLY in the New Englands, the finals of which are scheduled for November 21.

Novices will not compete in the Eastern and National finals in December, these title events being limited to "open" contestants.

There are many hundreds of youngsters with the desire and ambition to become fighters but lacking the experience and courage to go in and battle boys who have been in the game over a period of years.

In the novice classes these kids will meet others as green as them [illegible] and by this method will gain the experience and the courage

All-America Entry Blank

The following classes will be contested:

Flyweight	112 pounds	Welterweight	147 pounds

Gay Seeks Free Flow Of Capital

'Change Head Calls for Balanced Perspective On Part of Everyone

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

New York Stock Exchange President Charles R. Gay last night called upon government, industry and finance to co-operate in satisfying a desperate need of the country by opening the channels of capital expansion in order to maintain living standards, bring about greater production, create more jobs and promote better pay.

His address delivered before the American Institute of Accountants was free of political references to the part federal regulation may have played in the recent stock market declines. Alluding to the latter, he simply called for a balanced perspective in order that dispassionate judgments may be formed. Mr. Gay's remarks on the need of spurring the flow of funds into industry in no wise can be considered as an attack on regulatory bodies since Washington dispatches of late have emphasized it is a problem with which they are greatly concerned. And it is doubted that anyone can find fault with his statement that it is the essence of progress in living standards.

The Stock Exchange president continued that once the capital market is flowing freely it brings in its wake the things we like to think of as constituting balanced prosperity. New jobs, security for old ones, better pay and greater production; these are the things that come from the type of security market which best serves investment interests. And as such interests are best served, so too, is the public welfare through promotion of the flow of capital into productive enterprise. Mr. Gay cited the figure on new capital flotations both before the depression and last year. The former ran from $4,500,000,000 to $9,000,000,000 annually. Last year the figure was but $1,500,000,000. A shortage of productive wealth clearly exists.

* * *

In expanding his argument Mr. Gay emphasizes the lack of construction activity. He points out that what recovery has come to date is traceable, in large measure, to the stimulation of consumer buying through disbursement of federal funds, rather than to expansion of payrolls attending new construction. He sums up by noting that spending of government-created deficit funds must be replaced by private investment in productive wealth.

* * *

The stock market early today acted as though it were in a hurry to get the expected secondary reaction over with and find out just how good the support is that is supposed to underlie it. The period of erratic price movement clearly has not run its full course. Nothing other than the opening losses of 1-3 points need to be cited in support of this theory. Hope seldom is justified, and under present unsettled conditions is probably a hazardous thing to do, but we none the less are hoping that after sliding back down the hill a way prices will run up against good support and will quiet down for a period—a week or more—and then start forward in earnest.

* * *

The levels to which we hope prices will recede are roughly outlined by 125-130 on the Dow-Jones industrial index. Then a period of rest and a recovery lasting more than a mere session or two seems assured. It does not seem too much to expect, if ideals are satisfied, to look for an upside movement retracing a very large proportion of recent losses. Year end extra dividends have been forgotten now, but they will still be paid just the same and if margins are eased there is plenty to keep a rally going.

Proctor & Gamble Income Less

CINCINNATI, Oct. 22 (AP)—The Proctor and Gamble Co. reported net income for the first quarter of the fiscal year at $5,044,338 compared with $6,629,564 for the corresponding period last year.

R. R. Deupree, president, said the earnings equaled 75.7 cents a common share after all charges except federal surtax on undistributed profits and excess profits tax had been deducted compared with $1 for the like period of 1936.

Wool Stocks Above Last Year

Stocks of both apparel and carpet wool at the end of the third quarter were above the same quarter of 1936, although apparel stocks were below the second quarter this year, Department of Commerce reports.

Brief Stock Rally Fails to Hold

Declines In Majority at Close

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—A rally in rails was generally ignored by other stock market leaders today and prices in most groups tilted backward.

Steels fell at the start in fast dealings that put the ticker tape 2 minutes in arrears. Losses of 1 to 3 points were halved, however, when the transportation division [illegible] puff upgrade. Volume dwindled after noon.

The forward move was brief and even the railroads slipped from their best levels as buying support waned. Near the final hour declines were well in the majority.

Buoying the carriers was a renewal of reports the Interstate Commerce Commission was about to come through with a favorable freight rate decision. Rumors of this sort served to revive the wavering market yesterday. This time the talk was more insistent that the long-awaited decree would be forthcoming after the close today.

LITTLE NEWS

There was little in the actual news to spur speculative activities either way, and the general tendency of stocks to backtrack was attributed by brokers partly to the trading urge to cash in some of the gains that had accrued over the past three sessions and to [illegible].

Bonds started well but became somewhat uneven when rail loans refused to continue the climb-up of railroad equities. Commodities were also uneven and foreign exchange erratic.

Favored for a time—some skidded into the minus column in the afternoon—were Louisville & Nashville, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Union Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line, Delaware & Hudson, Lackawanna, Illinois Central, Norfolk & Western, New Haven, Lehigh, Nickel Plate, Colorado & Southern and Erie.

Inclined to give ground the greater part of the day were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Republic, Inland Steel, Kennecott, Cerro De Pasco, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, J. I. Case, Deere, American Smelting, Briggs Mfg., Loew's, Union Carbide, Radio Corp. and Zenith Radio.

A more than seasonal decline in last week's freight loadings was a mildly restraining influence. The total was below the preceding seven days and under the aggregate for the same period a year ago.

CURRENT TOPICS

Those watching retail trade for recovery signs noted the week-end survey of Dun & Bradstreet which said confidence had been restored to some degree but sales comparisons with last year were shortened considerably.

Retail distribution for the week was placed at 1 to 3 per cent above preceding period and 4 to 12 per cent ahead of the corresponding 1936 week.

Wholesalers, it was added, exhibited some reluctance to make forward commitments, but this was attributed to "astute merchandising policies" rather than to fears public demand for needed supplies will dwindle.

On the side of automotive shares was the statement of General Motors disclosing September overseas sales of cars and trucks were up 27 per cent over a year ago, while for nine months foreign shipments established a record.

At the beginning of foreign currency transactions sterling was off ⅛ of a cent at $4.95 3-16. The French franc was up .00¼ of a cent at 3.38¼ cents.

Carloadings Off 5178 Cars

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—The Association of American Railroads reported today 809,944 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday.

This was a decrease of 5178 cars, or 0.6 per cent, compared with the preceding week; a decrease of 16,581, or 2.0 per cent, compared with a year ago, and a decrease of 121,161, or 13 per cent, compared with 1930.

Co-operation Is Dire Need; Hopeful Sign

By B. C. FORBES

A group of railway workmen, riding home from their day's labor, were discussing the "laying-off" of scores of fellow employes. They were sore.

But against whom, would you guess they were sorest of all?

The President—not the president of the railroad, but the President of the United States. They complained that he had led them to believe that he would see to it that everything was going to be rosy, that everybody would have plenty to eat, that everybody would be well taken care of.

As they departed by twos and threes at local stations, their parting expression usually was one of apprehension as to which of them might be dropped next.

I am becoming disturbed over what I hear about the reduction of working forces in various quarters.

Railroads have taken perhaps the most drastic action thus far. In 1921 the railroads handled 410,3[illegible],000 revenue ton miles with 2,02[illegible] employes, while last year [illegible] revenue ton miles were transported with 1,1[illegible] employes. In 1929 there were 1,66[illegible] railway employes.

Railway companies, although doing a relatively large volume of business this year, have been particularly hard hit by rising costs. The advance in material prices, it is estimated, will add $65,000,000 to railway costs, while the total wage bill has been forced up to the tune of $135,000,000 a year.

Railway taxation has mounted [illegible] 1936 taxes, reaching $219,716,[illegible] were almost $[illegible] higher than in 1935.

And, of course, the railroads are tied hand-and-foot in the matter of rates. They are entirely at the mercy of governmental regulation.

It is disconcerting to think of what might happen were the ranks of the unemployed all over the country to be swelled inordinately this winter. Every responsible director and management should resort to cutting their work forces only when compelled by dire necessity.

They should not permit themselves to be stampeded by panicky exhibitions in Wall Street, disturbing though the melting away of security values admittedly is.

* * *

While it is true that New Deal leaders have sought to sell the American people the idea that they constitute the whole show, that they are capable of "planning" everything and are determined to do so, this arrogant attitude must not induce men of affairs to become guilty of an aloof, disinterested, supercilious frame of mind.

After all, this country isn't the executive property of bureaucrats. We should be as much concerned about its destiny as any politician.

President Roosevelt has indicated that he may have something to say in addressing Congress about recent events. It is just as earnestly to be hoped that he will be constructive as it is that employers will act, not as piqued children, but as business statesmen.

London Market Holds Gains

LONDON, Oct. 22 (INS) — Although the volume of trading was restricted, the London stock market today maintained yesterday's recovery assisted by the over-night strength in Wall Street prices.

International issues were quiet but firm with International Nickel at 47 21-32 dollars, U. S. Steel at 61 13-32 dollars and Anaconda copper at 32 3-16 dollars.

British funds were maintained, Chinese bonds rose ½ to a point higher, continuing yesterday's advances, and industrials were quietly steady. Iron and steels were very strong, while the remainder of the board was unchanged or slightly steadier.

Budget-Balancing To Be Difficult

Officials of the Treasury and other government departments contend three definite trends are shown in the latest budget revision which indicate that the balancing objective will be difficult of achievement.

Considerable significance is attached by these officials to the trends which show federal revenues declining, relief expenditures mounting and expenditures for other than relief increasing, when compared with estimates submitted to Congress last January.

Performance of Market Not Unusual

Haney Explains Action Of Stocks in Past Days

By LEWIS HANEY

(Professor of Economics, New York University.)

Special to the Boston Evening American

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—All of a sudden in the stock market on Tuesday, the buying became better than the selling, and a rebound followed which was as sharp and broad as any of the declines on bad days.

A selling climax had occurred.

Then, on Wednesday, stocks opened on an up-gap and proceeded to make another sharp gain. This was similar in proportions to the decline during the bad days of the past month or so.

To cap the climax, the tape ran later while the market was rising than it had done at any time during the crash.

DIFFERENT PATTERN

The whole performance, though somewhat different in pattern, has been much the same as it always is.

Wave after wave of selling develops, each one making its follower necessary, till finally there is nothing left for the necessitous speculators to sell.

It used to take, say, a 20 per cent decline to clean up a technically weak condition. This time there was no climax until most of the issues held by speculators had declined over 30 per cent.

But in the end the result is the same. The higher the margin, the harder they fall.

As usual, the rally came after the climax selling which cleaned out the necessitous and over-extended speculators, big and little. As usual, there were several classes of buying.

(1) Investors who "average down" on their holdings. They have been accumulating cash for some months, and now add to their holdings of selected issues at prices which reduce their average cost of investment.

(2) "Bargain hunters" who have been waiting for such a "sale," perhaps for years. Big and little, they flock to the market and buy as near bottom as possible.

(3) Traders for a turn. As a day such as Tuesday develops, it becomes clear that a sharp rally is getting under way. Large purchases are made by floor traders and others merely to make a quick profit by buying on the rise and selling at the first sign of hesitation in the market.

(4) Short covering, as usual, is a factor. Quick workers among the shorts cover the instant they sense a rallying tendency. Obstinate bears get locked in and repent at leisure.

SECONDARY REACTION

Obviously, these types of buying do not operate forever. In fact, you will note that as prices rise the only ones among them that will remain in the market are the quick traders and the obstinate bears.

So, as usual after such a selling climax, it will be found that the rally has carried too far, and a "secondary" reaction will come. The bargain hunters retire with their bargains. The short covering will cease. Then the traders sell out, and may even try the short side for a turn. Some necessitous holders who were not sold out now liquidate. Accordingly, prices fall back.

Then comes the real test of market's strength. If the selling climax was final, this secondary reaction will be halted at or above the previous low. It will not bring such volume of selling pressure as came with the preceding break. Such a relatively strong performance would invite large buying for a sustained advance in the market.

I think that the market is likely to hold. Under present conditions, however, it seems unlikely that much sustained progress will be made until important uncertainties concerning the attitudes of the President and Congress are settled.

One point we should all remember is that all this SEC regulation has not made the stock market either stable or safe for investors. There is good reason to believe that it contributed both to the bull movement and to the drastic slump that followed.

More New Freight Cars in Service

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—The Association of American Railroads announced that major roads placed 56,307 new freight cars in service in the first nine months of this year, the largest number for the period since 1930.

The figure compared with 27,178 in the comparable months of 1936 and 70,023 in the corresponding period of 1930.

More coal cars were placed in service than any other type, totaling 28,669. Box cars were next, aggregating 21,903.

Curb Market Turns Lower

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP)—A generally depressed curb market was somewhat relieved by brisk run-ups in selected specialty issues today. As the session approached mid-day most of the list was down fractions to a point or so in moderately active trading.

Many leading issues turned down in sympathy with lower prices on the "big board." Utilities, oils and metal shares could find little support. Some little-traded issues slipped a point or more on odd lot sales.

Footnotes Tell Why Values Melted

New Wall Street Setup Reduced Mart Ability of Securities

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

International News Service Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Three footnotes need to be appended to current comment for a reasonable interpretation of the recent melting away of stock values in Wall Street.

In the first place pessimism was exaggerated by conditions special to the financial district itself rather than general throughout the nation. Regulation of the security markets by the SEC and by the governing board of the Federal Reserve System have resulted in "thinner" markets, foreshadowing a long-term reduction in the earnings of the brokerage group dependent on speculation.

Furthermore, with speculation greatly restricted, the liquidity of stocks has been lessened, and when the public is in a selling mood the effect of liquidation on prices becomes enormously accentuated. The new setup has reduced the marketability of securities. Accordingly, the extent of the decline has reflected a recognition of fundamentally changed market conditions.

Secondly, the selling mood which followed the midsummer slump in cotton, corn, wheat and other basic commodities, reflects the fear of a disturbance in the conditions of a balanced economy. However, with the experience of the recent depression behind us, it is unrealistic to assume that the people will stand by and let a disequilibrium of the 1931-33 variety recur. On the contrary, a major item for the special session of Congress called for November 15 is the proposal for new and effective farm legislation.

If a successful effort is made to keep the farm-industrial income in working parity, then no important reduction in total economic activity is indicated. The question of balance among the domestic producing groups is of pivotal importance, and the unreasoning and emotional pessimists have apparently been jumping to the conclusion that nothing will be done.

Business, it will be recalled, consists of a process whereby the great economic groups, such as farmers, factory workers, and the service and professional groups give employment to one another through interchanging among themselves the produce of their year's labor.

Thirdly, recent business statistics reflecting the lull which has occurred in trade give a distorted picture, because the important automobile industry has just gone through the change of model period. This involves a temporary cessation of activities as work on the old models tapers off.

Now the principal companies have and are beginning to produce the new models, starting at first merely to produce inventories for the dealers. After the automobile shows, there will be some indication of the reaction of the public to the new models.

If it is favorable, the industry will make an increasing contribution to total business activity—a contribution which is necessarily absent during the transition between old models and new ones.

Thus two factors have been operating to get the public to withhold their purchasing power temporarily. Prospective buyers of automobiles have doubtless been waiting for the new models.

Moreover, farmers with the largest cash income in sight since 1929 have been avoiding spending all their available income, because the decline in commodity prices since midsummer has indicated that they may not be as well off next year.

Although some business men are taking a fatalistic view, it is significant that important scientific economists are beginning to challenge the doctrine of business cycles. There is now a growing disposition to question the notion that business fluctuates in accordance with any regular pattern.

The newer view is that the country is prosperous when it is in balance, and depressed when its groups fall out of balance.

Giant Army Plane Ready for Tests

DAYTON, O., Oct. 22 (AP)—The army's huge new high altitude attack plane was ready today for tests as an aerial fighting unit.

Piloted here from Buffalo by Lieutenant B. S. Kelsey of Wright Field, the twin motored bell fighter required just two hours for the trip. It accommodates five passengers and its designers claim it capable of attacking at an altitude of 30,000 feet.

R. T. Reynolds New Dividend Schedule

WINSTON SALEM, N. C., Oct. 22 (AP)—Directors of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. adopted a new dividend schedule calling for four quarterly interim payments of 60 cents each on the capital stock and a final year-end disbursement to be determined after earnings have been estimated near the close of the year.

The company for some time has been paying 75 cents quarterly. The new schedule, effective in 1938, is for the purpose of meeting new conditions created by the Federal surtax and undistributed profits, the company announcement said.

Cooking Secret Of Wild Duck Revealed

Martha Lee Tells How To Serve Birds to Please Hunters

FROM MARTHA LEE'S FRIDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX

A MAN who went duck hunting last week-end approached us with a genuine problem this week.

We quote the gentleman: "Martha, if you want to do a good turn for a number of sportsmen, please tell the women how to cook wild duck."

Well, we're always willing to oblige and help out whenever possible. We gather from this conversation that when father comes home proudly displaying the winged birds that he has not been enthusiastically received.

* * *

Any sportsman who begs to differ with our suggestions and feels that he has a better way of preparing wild duck is hereby invited to tell us his mode of preparation. We're open minded about the whole affair.

* * *

KNOWING the habits of some hunters, perhaps it is well for us to start by telling how to clean a wild duck. We believe the simplest method is to clip the wings and remove the coarse feathers, which will leave the duck covered with down.

Next we suggest melting a bar or cake of paraffin and painting the duck with the melted paraffin. Cover the entire surface of the bird with the hot wax, using a brush to apply. When the paraffin hardens it can be pulled off and will carry feathers and down with it.

IF FATHER wants it dressed as it is usually done in camp, he will draw the bird and leave the head on. He may leave the duck whole, salting it well and using pepper generously, or he may split the bird down the back. If he likes the strong gamey flavor, he will probably insist that it should not be washed either inside or out, but wiped clean with a dry cloth. He will tell you to roast the bird until done, but he will mean that he wants the duck to still be plump and the flesh red, not blue.

Currant jelly is a perfect accompaniment to baked wild duck, but cranberry sauce makes a very good substitute. A canvasback duck will require about thirty minutes baking time, according to size.

* * *

NOW that we have explained what the sportsman will probably want, we'll give a few of our own ideas on the subject.

If the birds are not exactly fresh when they arrive home, we suggest rinsing well inside and out with a solution of soda water, using a teaspoon of soda to a quart of water.

Then we dry the bird inside and out. We fill body and breast with skinned onions, chopped apples or a stuffing of wild rice. Season well inside and out with salt and pepper. Place in a roasting pan and cover the breast with thin slices of bacon or salt pork. We suggest roasting in an oven of 450 degrees F. from 20 to 30 minutes. If you want the red juice to run from the bird it should be done in this length of time. If you feel that it should be well done, reduce the heat to a moderate oven of about 325 degrees F. and continue cooking for another 30 minutes. In the event that the longer cooking time is preferred, it is well to baste with boiling stock.

The serving of gravy from the drippings must be decided for yourself. We are of the opinion that this is a case where the meat is better than the gravy, however, some like a sour cream gravy.

GARLIC METHOD

If you like the flavor of garlic, we suggest splitting the duck down the back and brushing well with garlic. Then spread with butter, season with salt and paprika and bake it in an oven of 450 deg. F. for the desired cooking period, basting with the fat in the pan.

TO ELIMINATE WILD FLAVOR

For those who have not cultivated the taste for the strong flavor of wild duck, it is well to parboil first and then bake. For this method, cover the duck with boiling water, add an onion, a carrot, two or three stalks of celery, a few sprigs of parsley and simmer for half an hour. Then remove from water and put in a roasting pan with thin strips of bacon or salt pork on the breast and bake in a moderate oven of 350 deg. F., for 30 minutes.

WILD DUCK BREASTS

If the hunting has been good or if the boss has been invited to partake of the duck, you may wish to barbecue the breasts. In this event, cut the breasts from the wild ducks and broil until they are brown, basting frequently with a barbecue sauce. We have given recipes for barbecue sauce, however we add another. Remember, too, to sprinkle the breasts with salt and pepper after they have started to brown.

BARBECUE SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter
4 teaspoons lemon juice
1 bay leaf
1 tablespoon worcestershire type sauce
2 tablespoons tomato catsup

Heat all together over low heat. Onion or garlic essence may be added if desired. Baste breast with this sauce until well-browned.

Mountain Climb Set for Sunday

Scenic beauties of the fall season will be seen on Sunday when a large group of nature seekers and mountain climbers assemble at Harvard square, Cambridge, for an all-day motor trip and hike under the direction of Eddie Farrell and the Metropolitan District Commission WPA division of recreation.

The party will meet at the Cambridge Common at 9:30 a. m. where chartered buses will transport them to Mt. Wachusett. From that point the party will climb the mountain, stopping at the halfway mark to eat lunch which will be carried along and cooked in the open.

The trip is open to the public and all those interested in joining the outdoor enthusiasts are requested to meet the party at the Common in Cambridge, while all those who have transportation may meet the buses at Indian Trail in East Princeton and join in the trip up the mountain. Further information can be had by calling the MDC in Boston.

Expects to Talk Here on Labor

With representatives from the labor departments of both states present, the Interstate Open Forum next Sunday will discuss "What New York and Massachusetts Are Doing for Labor."

The forum in Morton street, Dorchester, opens at 11 a. m. and there is no admission charge.

Miss Rose Schneiderman, secretary of the New York labor department and president of the Women's Trade Union League, will represent her state, while John P. Meade, director of the industrial department of the Massachusetts labor board, will be the other speaker.

Parking Meter Meeting Set

Representatives of civic and business groups will meet next week with Traffic Commissioner William P. Hickey, on invitation of Mayor Mansfield, to discuss the advisability of installing parking meters to relieve the city's downtown parking problem.

The mayor has announced he favors the proposed installation as an experiment and pointed out they had been found helpful in other cities.

At the same time City Councilor Clement Norton attacked the mayor for his stand and declared that few save those interested in the machines favored placing them on downtown streets.

New Luxury Ship Coming to Boston

In order to afford New England travel enthusiasts the opportunity to inspect one of the most palatial liners afloat, the Queen of Bermuda of the Furness Bermuda Line, is making a special trip here.

The Queen of Bermuda, with her sister ship, the Monarch of Bermuda, are designed to rival the luxury liners of the transatlantic trade. Both ships are of 22,500 tons gross register and have a passenger capacity of 800.

Wells Institute Classes Open Nov. 1

Twenty-seven evening classes for adults will open at Wells Memorial Institute, Washington street, November 1, marking the 58th season of that educational and recreational center. Registration is now in progress.

Featuring a new class in "Reading For Profit" for men and women, the institute has an attractive little prospectus that may be had upon inquiry. Classes for young people include ballroom dancing, tap dancing, dramatics and tennis.

A Great Patriot in Print

General HUGH S. JOHNSON

THE distinguished private citizen whose declaration of faith in America, and of war upon those he sees undermining that faith, has stirred the entire nation will continue his campaign of vigorous comment in a series of daily brief newspaper articles.

As in his speeches, so in his writing General Johnson does not pull punches. He brings them from the floor and aims for the button. His words are fighting words. Don't miss a one of them. Begin reading General Johnson.

Find Dr. Maguire Dead in Basin In Washington

Walpole Dentist Had Been Missing From Home a Week

The body of Dr. William H. Maguire, Walpole town health official, was found today floating in the tidal basin in Washington, D. C., by a fisherman.

Identification was made through telephone communications between Chief of Police Levi S. Thompson of Walpole and Washington police.

The doctor, a World War veteran, disappeared from his East street home a week ago. Last Saturday he checked out of a downtown Boston hotel and had been unlocated since.

His wife, Frances, reported his disappearance, voicing fears he had become an amnesia victim as the result of a severe case of shell shock suffered in the war.

For many years Dr. Maguire had operated the town's dental clinic and at one time was chairman of the board of health. He leaves three children.

Call Engineers Best Husbands

CHICAGO, Oct. 22 (AP)—More than 1500 wives agreed at a convention here that railroad engineers make the best husbands.

"To me," said President Ella D. Turner, of St. Louis, "engineers are the noblest men in the world. You note there's not a skinny wife here. We all married engineers. Their families eat well."

Roosevelt to Keep Warm Springs Visit

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—President Roosevelt will go to Warm Springs, Ga., Thanksgiving, if only for one day. He said today he plans to attend Thanksgiving dinner there in connection with the Warm Springs Foundation.

The Tax Crisis

A HOPEFUL factor in the present financial crisis is the increasing recognition of TAXES AS ITS CAUSE.

It is particularly encouraging that the financial adviser in whom the President seems to impose the most confidence is most forthright in his statement of the injurious effect of burdensome taxes on business.

Joseph P. Kennedy, former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission and now chairman of the Maritime Commission, is thoroughly capable of giving the President sound direction in the current crisis.

His statement of last week, following an audience with the President, that adjustment of the capital gains tax and the corporate surplus tax and reduction of Federal expenditures are necessary, shows the adequacy of his grasp of the depressive situation in which the nation finds itself.

As Dorothy Thompson wrote recently, the capital gains tax and the undistributed profits tax "have halted the development of new industries" and "have driven capital away from investment in actual production."

But burdensome taxes are raining upon producers and employers from MANY OTHER skies.

One of our large corporations, analyzing the maze of taxes through which its resources are drained, reports it is now subject to TEN DISTINCT GROUPS of Federal taxes, ELEVEN GROUPS of State taxes and FOUR GROUPS of local taxes.

The harm of high and duplicated taxes is no longer a matter of speculation, or of what might happen.

We are at this moment taking account of what high taxes, Federal, State and local, have done.

The Governors' Conference

THE meeting of the six New England Governors November 4 in Governor Hurley's office ought to be one of the year's outstanding events.

The six States that comprise New England, their total area smaller than that of a single large Western or Southern State, have IDENTICAL problems and COMMON interests.

It is fitting and proper that they should stand together and unitedly oppose the forces that menace them collectively, rather than individually.

Secretary Hull's reciprocal trade theories endanger Massachusetts as much as they do Connecticut, New Hampshire and Maine. Tariffs high enough to remove the competition of such low standard countries as Japan and Czechoslovakia are as important to one State as to the others.

Flood control concerns Vermont, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Connecticut. No State can hope to accomplish much without the cooperation of all the States through which the rivers flow.

Current agitation in the South for freight-rate revisions that would penalize all New England industry calls for a mighty show of strength in Washington. Single protests will not suffice.

There are numerous other problems that confront this section as a unit, not as six divided and distinct governments. Most of them closely touch the life and happiness of every New Englander. Consequently they rise above partisanship.

The six Governors, therefore, should assemble November 4 as the first citizens of their States. Politics, political affiliations and personal ambitions ought to be left at home.

The conference should have one purpose—A BETTER, HAPPIER and MORE PROSPEROUS NEW ENGLAND. If it succeeds, and we believe it will, similar sessions should be called from time to time in Augusta, Concord, Montpelier, Providence and Hartford.

Dr. Malone Can't Mean It

TO ACHIEVE greatness and fame, choose your parents with care. That's what Dr. Dumas Malone, director of the Harvard University Press, recently told students at the University of Richmond.

We can't believe Dr. Malone really means what he says. The probability is that he is simply ridiculing those who foolishly believe it is possible to inherit unusual qualities of mind and character.

Obviously no one can choose his father and mother. The Almighty makes the selections for us. How much or how little prominence our parents enjoyed before our birth is a matter over which we have no control. Time doesn't march backward.

We can, however, exercise a very powerful influence over our own lives. Endowed with free will, we can and should make the most of our intelligence and talents and, thereby, do for ourselves what nobody else, not even a parent, can ever do for us.

Were it possible for a baby to choose his parents, an aspirant for the United States Presidency would hardly pick out a pioneer, backwoods couple, without money and thoroughly obscure.

YET IT WAS OF SUCH PARENTS THAT ABRAHAM LINCOIN WAS BORN.

And, as far as we've been able to learn, he never had cause to regret the circumstances attending his birth.

Hiding Family Skeletons

DR. HELEN McGILLICUDDY, educational secretary of the Society for Social Hygiene, addressing the Massachusetts Parent-Teacher Association, talked common sense.

"The increase in sex crimes in this section," she said, "must be attributed to leniency on the part of parents, particularly mothers, in rearing sons."

This is undoubtedly true; the histories of numerous cases prove it. Abnormalities do not appear suddenly.

Consequently early discovery, recognition of the fact that something is wrong, and proper treatment by a competent physician will transform many a potential criminal into a healthy, law-abiding citizen.

As Dr. McGillicuddy warns, there is no excuse for pushing things into a closet, closing the door and forgetting about them. Such skeletons do not remain interred. In later years, they come out, bringing with them disgrace and suffering for the neglected individual, and for the family as well.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct 22.—Thoughts while strolling: Queen of the stage cats: Ilka Chase. Lots of gals wearing veils who are not the type. Two tough words to handle: Mold and mould. For perfect manners at a perfect meal: Frank Crowninshield having dinner with Emily Post.

O. O. McIntyre

Whatever became of Count Felix Von Luckner? And the combination calendar-bomb-box? Like Al Jolson or not, his voice is as good as ever it was. Human busy bee: Paul Block. Wonder if Bill Hay, of the radio, has lustrous teeth? All the grandmas are called Mimi these days.

Rhyme: For a phrase with a sock, I'll take Albert Jay Nock. And famous jiffs of 1937—Noel Coward and his manager, John C. Wilson. The genial radio columnist, Dinty Doyle. Once editor of the China Press in Shanghai, succeeding the world's most dapper journalist, Tommy Millard.

More rhyme: Ford Frick and his walking stick. Last of the Waterfield era dandies: Frederic McKay. Nice radio personalities: Parks Johnson and Wally Butterfield. Lois Long in one of those snappy new style hip-length fur coats. And Billy Gaxton in one of those gazelle skin creations.

Burgess Meredith suggests a George Bellows prizefighter, slightly shrunk. When collars are tighter, Sulka's Albert Mandel will wear them. Coiffure styles come and go, but mean nothing to Irene Bordoni and her bangs. And here we are within yoo-hooing distance of Christmas!

Tony Sarg is not stingy with his art. Frequently he has been overcome with an urge to decorate bathroom doors and walls at homes where he was a guest. Always he carries vest-pocket scissors and a small paint brush. And he can accomplish marvels with these scissors, lamp black, lip rouge and a tiny paint brush.

He is also a gifted clown. One of his most hilarious impromptu performances was at Earl Carroll's penthouse several years ago at an after-theater party. Nipping off a lock of Marcelle Carroll's hair to use as a mustache, he impersonated one of the high-heeled boulevard Gastons on his morning promenade along the Champs Elysees trying to handle both his flirtatious conquests and his French poodle of the sort Booth Tarkington calls "indecent."

Carroll immediately offered him $1000 a week to present same act in the Vanities.

Another valuable and free art contribution decorates the walls of Roy Howard's town house bar—the one with elevators and all. Many visiting celebrities who lifted tankards there have signed their names and those of artistic bent, such as Flagg, Goldberg, Christy, Gibson, Harrison Fisher and many more, have made sketches.

Afterward the signatures and drawings are varnished over for preservation to posterity.

There is a specious theory that the woman who sinks to the depths never rises again. But there are exceptions. Not many years ago she was accomplished in a certain art and commanded an enormous salary. Something happened. There were whispers. Some said drugs, others an unhappy love affair, and still others liquor and the gay life.

There was an evening I saw her half stagger to a table in the old Club Montmartre over the Winter Garden. She had taken on weight, a bleary defiant look, and life seemed to have tumbled in around her. I saw her down several whiskies neat, then get up on the dance floor only to be led off by a waiter captain.

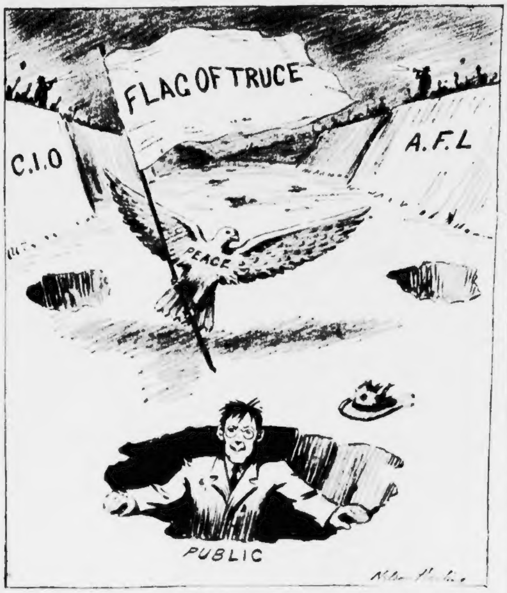
An interlude, then some of her work revealing zip and freshness. Last evening I saw her along the avenue thinned down, clean-eyed and with buoyant step. One felt like calling "Bravo."

How the other half lives: An attendant in an exclusive tailoring place tells me of a woman who had spent the entire morning deciding whether one or two buttons on a riding jacket would be more youthful.

(Copyright, 1937, McNaught Synd., Inc.)

"Cease Firing!"

By Nelson Harding



Next week representatives of the American Federation of Labor and of the Committee for Industrial Organization are going to hold a parley.

The purpose is to bring these two great labor organizations together.

The public, which has been caught "in between" during all the strife, welcomes the truce and hopes—with all good will toward both sides—that it will be lasting.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

She's 20 ... two years married and utterly miserable. All because "his folks" won't leave her alone.

Elsie Robinson

Day after day it's the same story. His Mother drops in to tell her how to run her house. His Sister phones to tell her where to buy her dresses. His Dad reads her a lecture on economy. His Aunt says she doesn't know how to raise the baby.

In short, they're "wrecking her life." She can't stand it another minute. Something's got to be done about it. So what?

Every mail brings the same old problem. If it isn't an interfering Mother-in-law, it's a Gossiping Neighbor ... or a Meddlesome Friend ... or a Mean Boss ... or someone else who takes the joy out of life.

So how can we make them stop?

WE CAN'T.

As sure as there's a sun by day and stars by night, there's bound to be some pestiferous person camping on every trail ... someone who delights in snooping and sneering, ragging and jeering.

THIRST FOR POWER

Nor will they stop with mild meddling. The higher we go, the harder they'll heckle. They'll whisper and mudsling ... they'll slander and lie. Anything to get our goat!

But why should they want to get our goat?

BECAUSE IT GIVES THEIR SOUR AND STUNTED NATURES A SENSE OF AUTHORITY.

Like all mortals, they long for power and popularity. But, in themselves, they are not strong nor wise nor kind nor merry enough to make their mark. However, if they can't achieve prominence fairly, they can do so unfairly—BY MAKING PESTS OF THEMSELVES. Nor is it such a racket as it seems!

For if they can shake you by their insinuations, they themselves seem strong and calm by contrast.

If they can force you to make a fool of yourself, they, by comparison, seem balanced and wise.

THE SOLUTION

So the Goat-Getting Racket goes on. And as long as you live, there'll be someone trying to increase their own importance by belittling yours.

Then what's the answer?

JUST THIS—TREAT THESE NUISANCES AS YOU'D TREAT ANY OTHER UNPLEASANT BUT NATURAL PHENOMENON.

Must ... mosquitoes ... hives ... sand fleas ... banana skins ... unmuffled automobiles ... gum on your movie seat ... all these annoyances cross your path. But, unless you're infantile or doddering, you do not let them upset your poise. A brief snort—and you go your grinning way unruffled.

YOU CAN TRAIN YOURSELF TO BE EQUALLY INDIFFERENT TO HUMAN PESTS. NO ONE CAN GET YOUR GOAT UNLESS YOU YOURSELF PERMIT IT. A MEAN MOTHER-IN-LAW OR A BULLYING BOSS MAY ALSO BE JUST ... MUD ON YOUR HEEL!

And therein lies the proof of your character. One test, and one alone, will show you the weakness or strength, the wisdom or stupidity of any man or woman: HOW MUCH DOES IT TAKE TO GET HIS OR HER GOAT?

You may have the genius of an Einstein, the courage of a Daniel Boone, the saintliness of a Father Damien, the charm of a Cleopatra. BUT IF YOU CAN'T HOLD YOURSELF ABOVE THE GOAT-GETTERS OF LIFE, YOU'RE A FLOP AND HAD BETTER START QUICK TO GROW UP!

Marry-GO-Round

By Helen Rowland

Only out in Hollywood do we hear of any sudden elopements these days. Cold-hearted lawmakers have dealt a death blow to that romantic adventure in most of our eastern states, simply by requiring a lapse of from three to five days between granting the marriage license and performing the ceremony.

That gives you too much time in which to change your mind, whereas in the good old days, you had plenty of time to change your mind AFTER the marriage.

But, even then, staging an elopement was already becoming the greatest problem of a modern girl's life. Not so much the problem of how or with whom to elope, but of finding somebody to elope FROM! Nobody cared. Nobody was stopping her!

SO HOPELESS!

Of course, she could go down and drag Father out of his office or off the golf links and make him stay home long enough for the Boy Friend to bring around a ladder and stage a "runaway." But, somehow, that seemed to lack the flavor. There was no zip to it.

Instead of bolting all the doors and threatening to shoot the impetuous young lover, Father would probably sneak upstairs and thoughtfully open the window for him.

And at the last moment Mother might be overcome by maternal instinct and call after them to inquire if they had enough motor-robes, or if they would like Jenkins to make them a few sandwiches to eat on the way.

It is all so hopeless—with these modern parents!

Alas, the day of romantic elopements is past! And those three and five day laws are going to cause a lot of suffering, especially among divorce lawyers!

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

The principal reason for calling a special session of Congres for November 15 is to shorten the regular session next year. By starting six weeks in advance of the time for beginning the 1938 session, the nation's lawmakers should be able to adjourn that much earlier next year.

As 1938 is campaign year, all the members who are seeking re-election will want to get home as soon as possible to conduct their campaigns.

So far as the nation is concerned, it should make no difference whether Congress starts, in a special session, six weeks earlier than usual or waits until time for the regular session and prolongs that by six weeks.

It used to be thought that a congressional session had an unsettling effect upon business. But that feeling has largely disappeared.

With the national government meddling so much in private affairs, it is better to know what is going to be done than to keep worrying about what may be done.

Crop control, regional planning and governmental reorganization are the President's main objectives for the coming special session.

He still insists there is nothing savoring of a dictatorship in his program. His argument is that "to carry out any 20th Century program, we must give the executive branch of the government 20th Century machinery to work with."

The Presidential notion of "20th Century Machinery" seems to be concentration of more power, not only in the Federal Government, but in the Executive himself.

Take this regional planning scheme, for example. Under it the 48 States would be divided into seven regions.

Under the Norris Bill, these seven regions would be established by Congress BUT THE PRESIDENT WOULD BE EMPOWERED TO CHANGE THEIR BOUNDARIES ANY TIME HE PLEASED. So the first power given the President would be that of dividing the nation into seven regions or districts.

Each region would have an "authority" consisting of a board of three directors appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. Each "authority" would be subject to "supervision by the President." His approval is necessary before any of the "authority's" plans can be carried out, and he can call upon any "authority" for plans for any project he desires.

In other words, the Administration in each of the seven regions will be directly under the control of the President.

A more far-reaching concentration of power in the White House never has been proposed.

Mysticism of the East

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Have you got ESP?

Professor Rhine's "extra sensory perception," as he outlines it in his book, may make the esp-man a standout like the "it" girl of a few years back.

Edwin C. Hill

This book, "New Frontiers of the Mind," supplies what appears to be the first genuinely scientific evidence to support telepathy and clairvoyance. The professor's pupils called the turn on the run of unseen card symbols in a way to make an old-line stud dealer reach for his gun. A man who could read a hole card like that could get rich, if he didn't get shot.

Naturally the esp-man as a gambler came up when we were discussing Professor Rhine's book in a little wayside tavern in New York's West Forties the other night.

Joining in was a meandering, foot-loose pet friend of mine who has been pretty nearly everywhere and seen nearly everything. From far places he culls all sorts of quaint tales.

One of them, on this occasion, had to do with a gambler down in Callao, who, my friend believed, really had the power of mind reading.

A CURIOUS STORY

But another yarn interested me more in its hook-up of ancient East Indian mysticism and today's "extra-sensory perception."

"It was in Goldfield in 1906," he said.

"The Montezuma Club there had in its personnel a lot of strangely assorted and care-free adventurers from all over the world, with a sprinkling of sober-minded citizens, mostly mining engineers.

"There was a stolid, half-breed Piute Indian who had cleaned up a million or two dry-placering; old Jim Leslie, a desert rat for 10 years, finding his bonanza, all gauded up in diamonds and horse blanket suits and pouring whiskey into his hollow leg night and day; there was Diamondfield Jack Davis, right out of a Boucicault melodrama, with his blue-black waterfall moustache and many notches on his gun.

"And there was Prince Savat Rudra.

"Prince Rudra was a mining engineer, a graduate of the University of London, representing British interests in the Nevada gold fields. He was a small, dapper man, fastidiously tailored—of the most exquisite courtesy and, as I came to know, of profound learning.

"In the card room, in the early morning hours, the prince and I had long talks. I asked him about the miracles of the gurus and the fakirs. Were they frauds? Many of them were, he thought. But he always left just a tiny crack of the door open.

"I had a feeling he was holding out on me and in repeated discussions I began pressing him. It was about 2 o'clock in the morning and we were alone in the card room.

"The prince was silent a long time and then he said: 'There are some wise men of our people who believe there is a time and space order different from the one we know. I myself have been puzzling things—the power of mind over an inanimate object, a strange foreknowledge of events.'

A DEMONSTRATION

"He then gave me a profound and to me somewhat bewildering philosophical explanation of such possibilities. Then, after another long silence, he added: 'In fact, on several occasions, I have been able to make a slight demonstration of these conjectures.'

"We walked home, past a big saloon with a few laggard players. I said one of those gauche things that make you want to bite your tongue. 'Prince,' I piped up suddenly, 'wouldn't the roulette wheel give us a fine chance for a demonstration?' To my relief, he was not offended. 'Well, we might have a little try,' he said, 'but I won't promise you that it will work.'

"Prince Rudra, scattering the chips around the lay-out, played no system. I followed his play. In about half an hour, my $10 had been run up to around $1500. The prince, with more confidence, had won several thousand. 'Shall we call it a demonstration,' said the prince smilingly.

"He wasn't at the club during the next few weeks. When I did encounter him again, late one night, I was eager for more laboratory work. As tactfully as I could, I suggested that we renew our experiment. The prince agreed. There was the same dealer—a black cowlick on his forehead, his sleeves in sateen armlets, his tie knotted through a poker chip, a dead cigarette hanging from his lips, his ratty eyes viewing us with venomous distaste as we approached.

"I had about $500 of my thousand left. The prince had a big roll. It took that poisonous looking dealer just a few whirls to stand us on our head. We went out broke.

"The prince was as bland and smiling as ever. 'It may have been a doctored wheel,' he said. I wasn't feeling philosophical and we walked home in silence. I never saw the prince again, and never learned what became of him. But after I left, I did learn that that particular dealer had been shot for loading a wheel.

"And I also learned that the prince, up in Alaska, had been famed for occult powers. But why didn't he just have the gurus spot up a ledge for him instead of working as a mining engineer? There are many things I would like to ask."

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

The Russians will vote at a country-wide general election for the first time on December 12.

The first nominees for a seat in the new two-chambered Supreme Council are Joseph Stalin, the warden of Russia, and his chief bumper-off and "trusty," Nicolai Yezhov, head of the political police.

There are no campaign issues, and although the ballot is "secret," who do you think would risk his "free" neck by voting for Trotsky for Stalin's job?

This will be the greatest farce of an "election" in all history. It will be like a meeting of the rubber-stamp Reichstag under Hitler or the yes-yes Italian Parliament under Mussolini.

On December 12 millions of Russians will repeat with bated mental breath what Bukharin, former editor of "Izvestia" and now in jail (or dead), said:

"There IS room for two parties in the country. One party stays in power, the other in jail."

Only the party in power will vote on December 12.

Vesuvius, the ever-smoking chimney of Italy, is again roaring, raging and spitting tons of fire and lava out of its tremendous mouth.

Four thousand feet high (more than three Empire State towers piled on one another!), Vesuvius overlooks Naples. It goes on its frightful jamborees every once in awhile—just why remains a secret of its own.

It was on Monte Somma, an extinct crater of Vesuvius, that Spartacus, the Roman gladiator, was beseiged in 73 B. C. by Claudius Pulcher.

Spartacus escaped by twisting vine-ropes and descending into the crater. Why Pulcher didn't go after him is not recorded.

But it was on August 24, 79 A. D., that Vesuvius spoke her historic piece. The whole mountain exploded and buried Pompeii, Herculaneum and Stabiae and all their inhabitants. They are still excavating them.

The old monster went to sleep for 1500 years, or calmly smoked his pipe, letting out his smoke more or less meditatively, when in 1631 he was taken with another brain-storm and destroyed 18,000 persons.

Ever since, he has been rumbling and muttering to himself. Just, now he is getting angry again because, no doubt, there is an observatory near the crater trying to spy on his secrets.

Many of nature's secrets have made a clean breast of it to the prodding scientists—but volcanoes cannot be made to "come clean."

The story of Emile Zola, as it is told in the most inspiring picture that ever came out of Hollywood, finds a remarkable parallel in another case of injustice that shook the world and which made of a man far more famous than Zola an immortal champion of justice—Voltaire.

In 1761 a son of Jean Calas, of Toulouse, hanged himself. It was charged by rumor that he had been driven to his death by his father, Jean Calas, a respected merchant, because of religious differences.

The innocent Calas was tortured for a confession by order of the parliament of Toulouse and finally burned to ashes on March 9, 1762. The property of the family was confiscated and a son banished for life.

But precisely as in the Zola-Dreyfus case, the widow of Calas found in Voltaire a man who had the courage to defy the sentiment of a whole nation. He laid the facts before the council of state of Versailles and had the dead Calas declared innocent and the property restored to the family. Voltaire's name rang around the world like a mighty tocsin.

It must have been the Calas case that was in the mind of Zola when he penned his famous "I Accuse!" against the French army general staff and the French government in his attempt to get Dreyfus out of Devil's Island.

How few of us have the courage of Voltaire and Zola! Only ONE such man seems to be born each century.

The modern heroes of science will some day constitute the epical story of the century. The latest of these heroes is Dr. Matias Duque, Secretary of Public Health of Cuba, who submitted to an operation with a cancer filtrate in an effort to prove his theory that cancer is caused by a filterable virus. These inoculations were made from cancerous tissue of a woman patient.

Now this heroic "guinea pig" of science will calmly wait for "developments." These men are also Voltaires and Zolas.
